THE NINETEEN THIRTY-TWO COLLEGIAN

□ THE YEARBOOK OF □
CRANE JUNIOR COLLEGE

WE live in a world that is changing:
we live in a world that has changed and will change—a dynamic world. In such a world democracy is safe; in such a world—a dynamic, mobile, changing world there is always hope. Conditions that are bad can be remedied; future bad conditions can be prevented. This is democracy.

We at Crane are peculiarly fortunate.
We live and work, not in a static, changeless school world, but in one that has become dynamic, mobile, changing—in one that can be what we make it—a democracy.
Leading us, advising us, believing in us and believing with us in real democracy is the man who has made this possible—Dean
J. Leonard Hancock. To him, we dedicate this year's volume.

*All you that are enamored of my name
And least intent on what I most require,
Beware; for my design and your desire,
Deplorably, are not as yet the same.
Beware, I say, the failure and the shame
Of losing that for which you now aspire
So blindly, and of hazarding entire
The gift that I was bringing when I came.*

FOREWORD

IN editing a book of any kind two matters stand for primary consideration: content and method of presentation. It has been the purpose of the Collegian Staff of nineteen thirty-two to present in this volume a complete reconstruction of the activities in the College during the year and a compilation of indelible impressions which, we hope, will serve in the future as pleasant echos—faint perhaps, yet exact and harmoniously blended by time—of days spent by students at Crane. Our method of presentation we have striven to make modern, yet conservative to a respectable degree, and simple. Our art work, our typography, in fact the entire planning of the book has been done with these desires in mind. The theme of the volume, DEMOCRACY, which never loses its fundamental significance in any age, has been chosen, not because this, our nation, or any nation, has attained it, but because of its potent, innate manifestation in men as an ideal, or a dream perhaps, towards which humans will always strive.

One main source of subject material for contemporary literature is this plea for democracy, this cry for freedom from oppression. In this book we have chosen quotations from such poems to supplement our drawings and to intensify their meaning, hoping, in this way, to bring out our theme more clearly.

THE last two years have been the fullest and the most significant in the history of Crane College. Last year we were given new life and vigor by our own achievements in reorganization and by the praise bestowed upon the College from all parts of the country. This year, with the help of many friends new and old, friends who represent the civic leadership in the city and the state, we have won our fight for legalization. Every student and teacher in the College had a share in the campaign of publicity that brought that victory. When Governor Emmerson signed the bill on Dec. 9, 1931, a new epoch began for Crane College. We are henceforth a well-known institution, one of the real show-places of the City of Chicago.

Yet, scarcely had we won our place in the educational system when Chicago was faced with the question: "Can we maintain a city college in these years of depression?" Once more the limelight fell on us, and once more we profited by the publicity. The fine, earnest attitude of our students impressed every Board member who saw the school. They felt the value of this educational opportunity to the young people who will soon be civic leaders in Chicago; and even under severest pressure of economy they have said, "We cannot afford not to keep the City College."

Meanwhile, this excitement has not disrupted school life. Classes have gone on smoothly; there has been better attendance than ever before; standards of achievement have arisen. Even though we lack a campus, even though free hours and rooms are hard to find, clubs and organizations of all sorts have had unusually fine meetings. We are proud, too, of our achievements with the Javelin, the Pen and Pad, the debating team, the athletic teams, both men's and women's.

It has been a hard year for education in general. But for Crane College there has been so much to inspire and hearten us all that we shall look back to it as a good year. My personal thanks and congratulations to all who have shared in it!

J. LEONARD HANCOCK,
Dean.

ALTHOUGH in the course of years of teaching commencement exercises come with great regularity and are apt to become a matter of routine, they always make me recall some of my own emotions when it was my own name that was being read out among those graduated. At the risk of being trite, I say each time with genuine feeling that I congratulate those who are passing this definite marking place in their education.

Most of us who have been working in the field of education for some time not infrequently believe that we should warn those being graduated that this marker is not an end of education and the commencement of life but all life is a process of being graduated. We should constantly be calibrated with greater and greater refinement as well as increasing our capacity for measuring. I am now expressing the belief in the hope that it may produce good in some.

I trust you will carry on from here in such manner as will make Crane glad to have numbered you among its graduates.

KENNETH W. DUNCAN,
Registrar.

PERSONNEL DEPARTMENT

ONE of the outstanding developments in the history of the Crane administration is the establishment of the Personnel Department. It is the aim of this department of the college to become acquainted with every student; and to have an up-to-the-minute record of his employment history; of his ambitions, interests, and aptitudes; of his health; of the conditions under which he does his studying; and of his scholastic accomplishments, including his high school report.

To this end he is interviewed by both selected older students and college-trained personnel workers. And just how he differs from other students goes down on record.

In addition to this program the testing of each student is an important part of the procedure. The scores from these tests aid the Deans, first, in determining how many hours the student should carry both in original and in revised program; and second, in advising in all cases needing adjustment—for example, in diagnosing the cause of failure and success of students, in handling a probation case, in recommending dismissal, in dealing with disciplinary problems, in encouraging superior students, and in suggesting change of course or subjects to be elected. The placement tests are given as an integral part of the program of registration week. These tests are never used to keep the student out of school, but merely to classify him; they are to help understand him as an individual. Recommendations of each student are kept in a permanent file to answer requests from schools and prospective employers.

Significant statistics have been compiled from group studies made this semester. The number of graduates employed after graduation, the percentage of foreign born parents, the number of hours spent in transit, participation in outside activities, outside study conditions, reasons for students' leaving school, are indications of the type of student at Crane College and the variety of difficulties he has to overcome.

Whether the student is efficient and capable enough to handle extra-curricular activities—a class office, or committee chairmanship, or an editorship of a publication—and still maintain his scholastic average is checked by this office with the Bureau of Records and the Personnel files.

The Personnel Office is established for the purpose of solving the problems of the student concerning the school and the problems of the school concerning the student by effecting a closer understanding.

THE EVOLUTION OF CRANE

THE year of nineteen thirty-two, like the year of nineteen thirty-one, was a period of uncertainty in the history of the college. First, the legal foundation of the college was questioned, and then, after that difficulty was satisfactorily settled and Crane Junior College enjoyed an unquestioned legal existence, the city debated whether it could support a junior college or not. But again affairs were decided in favor of Crane and there is every reason to believe, after inspection by officials, that Crane will continue to be one of the most important institutions in the City of Chicago.

Through this crisis eleven men and women guided the school, representing every department in the school and chosen because of their competence both in handling students and conducting college activities. They are: Beulah Berolzheimer, Dean of the School of Literature and Arts; Herman D. Roller, Dean of the School of Engineering; Everett R. Hutchinson, Dean of the Pre-Legal School; Aloysius McDermott, Dean of the School of Commerce and Administration; Warren C. Hawthorne, Dean of the Pre-Medical School; Kenneth W. Duncan, Registrar; Alice J. Griffin, Director of Personnel; Josephine C. Doniat, Dean of Women; David F. Davis, Dean of Men; Robert J. Riordan, Director of Activities and Publications, and Charles P. Smidl, Director of Physical Education.

CLASSES

I N THIS Collegian is preserved a picture of much of the organized social life of the College. The glimpses caught from the pages of this volume will, undoubtedly, serve to recall to each of you the more intimate details of your activities in the organizations to which you belong. In some measure they will remind you of your failures as well as of your successes; of your disappointments along with your pleasures. But no tangible record is needed to remind you of the enduring bond of friendship formed with students and teachers, or of the worth of the training received through faithful study and competent instruction.

You came, you studied, and today you are graduated! While these events are significant, and call for congratulation, they suggest little, beyond minimum essentials, concerning the character and quality of your training. Scholarship averages and honor rolls, however, give a reassuring hint; but the complete answer must await the slow unfolding of the future. The problems of today are of such magnitude and complexity that their satisfactory solution is possible only by combining the clearest thinking, the soundest judgment, and the most resolute courage. Graduates of 1932, this is your challenge whether your immediate course lie in the direction of further training for life's work, or lead at once to active participation in practical affairs. We look confidently to the future for your answer!

WITH Herbert Tuchinsky as their leader the February class of nineteen thirty-two claims to have promoted one of the most active programs of collegiate activities in recent Crane history. They sponsored several school dances in the college gym; they met regularly; they gave numerous programs; and they presented a Senior Assembly or Class Day in Bartholf Hall at which several motion picture features were shown.

The main even of the semester, the climax to all the other activities of the February Class was the Junior-Senior Prom, given, as implied, with the co-operation and assistance of the Six B Class. Through arrangements managed by Edward Norman, Prom Committee Chairman of the Senior Class, the Prom was given in the Grand Ballroom of the Steuben Club. As anticipated by the graduates and the student body, the dance and entertainment was a success in every sense of the word and was attended by a large, sociable group of students.

Class Night, with its stimulating entertainment and marvelous dinner, was well managed by Sidney Gerson, Chairman of Class Night Committee and again spelled success as indicated by the number of students who attended and enjoyed themselves. The Committee was fortunate in arranging to have this final meeting of the graduates in the Florintine Room of the Congress Hotel.

WITH the close of this semester, the students that entered the college in September 1930, will have completed a successful two year college career. Maurice Perlin was the choice of the students to lead them through their graduation days.

Although the class has, since its first semester, had many assemblies and dances, the first big all-school assembly was held during the early part of last year's football season at which time Richard (Dick) Hanley of Northwestern University spoke to the large assemblage of students.

Following this, the class, with the co-operation of the February graduating class held their Junior-Senior Prom on January 8, 1932 at one of Chicago's finest ballrooms, The Stueben Club. Much of the success of this gala affair was due to the diligent work of William Simon the chairman of the Prom committee and Thomas Cameron, the president of the 6B class.

This semester's activities under the leadership of Maurice Perlin began with a Friday Afternoon Dance, and was followed by various other activities planned by the co-chairmen of the respective committees. The co-chairmen of these committees were: Frank Plescia and Harold Kass, Prom Committee; Grover Wickenden and Sarane Davis, Class Day Committee; Irving Steinberg and Rose Wein, Class Night; Harold Tipp and Daniel Gardiner, Cap and Gown; Marie Witkin and Lester Richman, Program Committee.

The semester closed with many events that will be long remembered by the students. During the early part of June the Junior-Senior Prom was held in the beautiful Oriental Room of the Knickerbocker Hotel on Chicago's near North Side. Succeeding this affair was Class day with its many new and novel features and innovations. June 14th, Class Night was celebrated in the gorgeously decorated Venetian Room of the Southmore Hotel. Nothing was spared to make these events a fitting climax for the students short-lived life at Crane.

UNDERGRADUATES

THE social and formal activity of the undergraduates has been an important factor in the organization of the college. Participating actively in the main events of the year, the undergraduates have demonstrated commendable efficiency in co-operating to complete successfully one of the most active years in the history of Crane. The Frosh All School Dance, the Sophomore Summer Informal, and the Junior's participation in the Junior-Senior Prom have been the especially noteworthy achievements of the year.

The undergraduate officers have stimulated the activity of its members; and undergraduate participation has taken on a new meaning—an unwritten pledge to the development of a greater Crane.

Post-graduate activity during the past semester has demonstrated conclusively the loyal and unselfish regard that the alumni sustain toward their alma mater.

THE 6B's organized early in the Spring semester of 1931, with an enrollment of approximately twelve hundred freshmen. Class officers were elected on a basis of honorary achievement; each representative Chicago high school contributing a member to the staff of officers. Under the efficient leadership thus provided, the class experienced a semester of outstanding achievement in various fields of endeavor. Hirsh Evanstein, President of the class, assisted by Oscar Lasher, Laura Shea, and Isreal Roth was painstaking in every class activity.

Highlights of social activity were dances given at Crane and a second staged on December 11, at the Columbus Park Refectory.

6B again organized in the spring semester with Ian Rubenstein aspiring to leadership of the class. Efficient Council members were returned in the personages of Laura Shea and Marvin Martin.

Among sundry class activities was a dance given at Crane, April 8th, featured with the music of Phil Gordon and his orchestra. Dr. Hancock appeared as the guest of honor of the affair.

The Junior-Senior Prom staged in the Oriental Room of the Knickerbocker Hotel, January 14, proved to be the outstanding social event in the history of 6B. One hundred fifty gay couples attended the elaborate affair. Chaperons for the occasion included Dr. and Mrs. Hancock, Miss Josephine K. Doniat, Dr. D. F. Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Robert I. Riordan. Heading the guest list were Mr. Duncan, Dean Hutchison, and a bevy of Crane dignitaries.

The class extends its appreciation to Mr. Harry L. Andrews, who has continued his invaluable service in the capacity of class advisor, throughout the history of 6B.

THROUGH the valiant efforts of its officers, the 5A class enjoyed a highly successful semester during which it conducted some of the outstanding events of the spring season. The class initiated the semester by electing a capable group of officers under whose leadership they finished a creditable program.

Because of his popularity with the students of the sophomore class, Percy Silver was elected to fill the position of president. Nat Grossblat, a popular student and prominent in school activities, was chosen to aid Mr. Silver as vice-president. Sylvia Holzman filled the position of secretary and Milton Skolnick was elected treasurer.

Outstanding among the events of the sophomore season was the Summer Informal held at the Columbus Park Refectory, June 7. The social was well attended. The "Lucky Friday Dance" followed in the 5A activity program, being held on May 13 in the large gymnasium.

"On The Dotted Line" followed the "Lucky Friday Dance" on May 25. The comedy-farce was staged by the 5A class under the supervision of William F. Madden, Crane College Dramatic instructor. In the competitive contest the following cast was chosen: Sophia Mizock, Max Ruschakoff, Rosaline Hochman, Anthony Stelnok, and Morris Zussman. The promising playwrights were Sherman Marks and Sam Statland.

The Five A students were exceptionally active in all extra curricular activities. The particularly noteworthy athletes were Fred Drucker, track star; Harry Tallen, prominent in baseball; Ted Sherwin, first man on the golf team; Robert McConville, star diver. The Five A's were well represented on the Debating Team, which won the South Shore Championship. Nat Grossblat and Alfred Teton were their participants. Mr. Charles Jenkins and Dr. J. Kinney deserve commendation for their able assistance as sponsors. Because of their unswerving diligence, the 5A class were enabled to organize promptly and to prepare and execute an efficient activity program.

THE 5 B class has completed a successful semester in which it has shown its ability to adapt itself to Crane conditions and has shown diligence in promoting the welfare of the school as a whole.

Though it entered the school at a critical period, it valiantly accepted its responsibility and did all within its power to co-operate with the other classes in restoring Crane to its former position of excellent standing.

Upon adjusting itself to the new conditions at Crane, it immediately proceeded to elect officers to lead their class throughout the ensuing semester.

Bernard Shapiro, because of his recognized ability as a leader in high school activities and his popularity with the incoming freshman was elected to the position of president. Sam Holman another outstanding student of the freshman class was the choice of his classmates for the position of vice-president. Ben Crane was chosen to serve as secretary. The position of treasurer was filled by Carl Suseman.

Under the leadership of these officers, the 5 B class was enabled to complete a creditable semester. Its outstanding activity was the class dance held to promote good fellowship among the class.

The committees of the class are: Social Committee, Jack Tobin and E. Thompson, co-chairmen, R. Shapiro, M. Krovetz, M. Bank, M. Glickman, A. Goldman, S. Bloom, S. Werker, M. Miller, M. Braum, L. MEN'S ATHLETICS

Charles Schmidl

CRANE College has enjoyed, in this year of general upsets—one of the best sport years in the history of Tiger athletics. One who analyzes the lists of opponents and compares them with those met in the "prosperity" years of 1925-'30 (judging from wins and losses) will find that the teams of this year were in general superior to those of the five previous years. While back in the "old days"—when Crane was a member of the Northern Illinois Junior College Conference, and when it was no uncommon occurrence for the Tigers to sweep through undefeated seasons to seven Conference Championships, Crane met junior college and small four-year college teams—teams in most cases decidedly inferior to Bengal squads. In 1932—the second year of free-lance competition—Orange and Black representatives, in all sports, competed against powerful four-year colleges—even with some members of the "Little Nineteen Conference."

As head of the athletic department, Charles Smidl, coached as he has in the past year, the basketball and tennis teams. The cage team finished its season with a percentage of .600, winning nine games and losing six; while the net team met and defeated several of the best college tennis squads in the Middle-West.

Coach Harry J. Fausel, who coached the football, wrestling, and track teams, experienced fruitful results in his efforts. The gridders won six games and lost four—for a .600 percentage; the grapplers won eight meets while losing only two; and the tracksters won two indoor track meets from Morton and Armour, placed second in a triangular meet, and were well on their way to more outdoor victories at the time the "Collegian" went to press. Coach George Wallenta who assisted in coaching football, and who began handling the swimming team, left Crane at mid-semester. Dr. Morris Berk took over the swimmers and "carried on" in fine shape. The swimming team won seven meets—five actual frays and two forfeits, while losing three dual clashes. "Doc" David F. Davis, Dean of Men, coached a "green" golf squad in his usual superb style. Coach Patrick Pierce and Dr. Berk supervised intramural athletics. "Pat" also sponsored an embryo fencing team, two members of which placed second and fourth in the State Tournament.

FOOTBALL

A COLORFUL Orange and Black grid machine, possessing both speed and punch, unleashed its bag of diversified football "tricks" to last through an extremely formidable season with a final record of six victories and four losses.

Every movement of the Tiger eleven smacked of dash and color. Light and hustling, the Bengals made use of every opportunity, and outplayed their heavier, more experienced foes. The Crane power plays were derived from the Fausel "T" formations, a galaxy of spinner and line plunges, combined with sweeping runs and long forward passes. Despite the fact that the back-field averaged less than 170 pounds, the hard driving ball toters, aided by the super efforts of an 185 pound forward wall, supplied the scoring punch necessary to register victories.

A thrilling hard fought battle with a powerful Mount Morris outfit, 1930 co-champions of the Little Nineteen Conference, gave the Bengals a 13 to 0 shutout in the season opener on September 26 at the Mountaineers' grounds. Although seriously handicapped by lack of drill, having practiced for only two weeks, the Fausel men fought their more seasoned opponents to a standstill during three quarters, only to weaken as the finish loomed, when the Mountaineers pushed over two touchdowns in the closing minutes of play.

A slippery, mud-field proved little hindrance as the boys resumed activities on October 1 and ran wild through a befuddled Chicago Normal squad to ring up a 14 to 0 triumph. The locals outplayed the Tutors much more than the final score indicated, for the "first stringers" were used only in one period, and the third, when both touchdowns were scored.

Inspired by their victory, the Tigers pounced upon a highly trained Wheaton eleven to administer a 7 to 0 lacing, October 3, just two days after the Normal fray. The Orange and Black forces seemed a bit slow and weary,

Coach Fausel, Yeksigian, Captain Balas, Mgr. Jewel

but later came into their own, and with Balas and Kraus leading the offensive worked the ball across the gridiron, culminating their drive when Isreal slipped through the line for the only touchdown of the tilt. Balas drop-kicked for the extra point.

Lady Luck frowned and the Crane pigskin handlers were forced to remain content with a scoreless deadlock against a surprisingly strong De Paul Freshman squad on October 10. Strengthened by the return to action of Leo Yeksigian, the burly, "rough and ready" tackle, the Fausel chargers outplayed De Paul Frosh convincingly, but several penalties and untimely fumbles saved the day for the opposing team.

It took Crane's grit and fight to accomplish what previously six more powerful aggregations couldn't even come near doing—namely to score against the impregnable Valparaiso University steam roller. Dennis Scully plunged through the Valpo line and sprinted thirty yards to a touchdown. The Uñlan's superb passing attack was invincible, and the Hoosiers scored early with long, accurate tosses. Valpo won 20 to 6.

Fighting desperately, the Bengal warriors held a strong Culver Military Academy squadron deadlocked 6 to 6 on October 1. The Tigers opened hostilities early when Stryker broke through the cadet forward wall, blocked a punt, recovered the ball, and raced thirty yards to a touchdown. Culver threatened repeatedly, but the sturdy Crane defense held grimly until the fatal last quarter when an erratic pass was completed to score the "Army" touchdown. Infuriated the Fauselmen lauched another drive, marching straight across the gridiron, only to be stopped inches from the coveted goal as the game ended.

Meanwhile a tough Crane "B" team made two hours miserable for a champion Morton College group, only to drop to a close 12 to 7 decision. Sol Vollen intercepted a Morton peg in the second quarter and dashed fifty yards for a touchdown.

On November 17 Manchester, conqueror of the mighty Valparaiso Uhlans, loomed disastrously before a revamped Tiger team. Forced to resort to aerial warfare because of their foe's overpowering weight advantage the Tigers were finally nosed out 17 to 13. Although reinforced by the return of more weight in the person of "Tubby" Hirsch, linesman, and although the Tigers fought valiantly, they fell before the powerful line drives of their hosts.

Crane's Method of Making Wagon Holes

Homecoming Day attracted a huge throng which cheered the Crane warriors as they came from behind with a rush to tie a fast-stepping Aurora eleven 6 to 6 at De Paul field, November 14. After Hirsch had blocked an Aurora kick, Kraus hurdled through the opposing line to knot the score.

Gilbert Topp, that long wiry lad holding down the left end position, was the individual hero of Crane's curtain-dropping 2 to 0 victory over the Bradley Tech Frosh, November 21, as the 1931 season ended. Gil's scintillating receivership of long passes and hard tackling stood out, but his major feat came when he nailed the fleet Hanley, Indian star back, behind his own goal for the winning score of the game.

Of the nineteen lettermen who represented Crane on the gridiron, nine will probably return for more action. These include: Harold Isreal, quarter-back; Dennis Scully and Sol Vollen, fullbacks; Lester Hirsch, Jack Egdorf, guards; Harold Reses and Alvin Goodman, ends; Herbert Haussman, James Mattengly, tackles.

The following have ended their athletic careers at Crane: Captain Balas, half-back; Ted Frystak, quater-back; Edward Kraus, half-back; Gilbert Topp, end; Harry Jennings and Adolph Berg, guards; Norman Stryker, center; and Leo Yeksigan, tackle.

The Tiger Crouched, Ready to Spring

BASKETBALL

POWERFUL, fast-breaking offensive tactics, sharp accurate passing, and a sterling, impregnable defense combined to produce another smooth functioning Crane cage aggregation which, after a belated start, rallied to sweep triumphantly through an extremely "stiff" schedule of fifteen games, several of which were with four-year college quintets. Handicapped at mid-season by graduation and ineligibility, the Smid'men showed surprisingly well in registering nine wins.

"Johnny" Reckzeh, the sharp-shooting forward, was undoubtedly the Tigers' outstanding performer, heading the Orange and Black offense with 195 points, including ninety baskets and fifteen free throws; while Captain John Maloskie was the team's steady and consistent floor leader.

Opening with North Park the Bengals encountered little opposition and emerged victors in a slow, drawn out affair, 44 to 31. The locals seemed in poor condition, lacking zest and punch, and were next forced to bow before strong "Y" College and Lincoln fives. Washburne, a decidedly inferior outfit, forced the doughty Smidl forces to extend themselves in order to eke out a victory of 33 to 26. However, the Tigers were gradually rounding into form, and after dropping a close decision to an overpowering McKenree machine, 40 to 36, the men of Crane came into their own and wreaked their vent-up vengeance upon La Salle-Peru by a 43 to 31 score. Height and weight disadvantages meant nothing to the Smidmen, who literally swept the bewildered downstaters off their feet to earn a clean-cut decisive victory. Heartened by this display of their real prowess, the rejuvenated Crane Cagers swamped "Y" College under a deluge of baskets to win the return contest, 53 to 28.

At this point ineligibility regulations and graduations seemed destined to wreck the fine machine which Coach Charles P. Smidl had so carefully and assiduously polished and perfected. With only eight men left eligible to compete, and being further handicapped by having only four men in the line-up since two players had been ruled out for excessive fouling and two more had been injured, the Bengals resorted to successful stalling tactics to protect a slender early lead despite the desperate rushes of an outsmarted North Park squad. This 42 to 38 win was the Tigers' second victory of the season over the Vikings.

Traveling difficulties meant little to the clever Crane crew, which again humbled La Salle-Peru in the return game on the losers' home floor. An overwhelming defeat of the Illinois Pharmacy quintet ran the Tigers victory string to five, but the local charges caught a Tartar in Lincoln, which administered the first and only trimming the Bengals suffered on the Crane floor.

A mighty Armour Tech foe, boasting an earlier victory over the home lads, were outclassed 27 to 24, by the vengeful Tigers in a stirring nip-and-tuck return battle. A steady flow of Armour reinforcements failed to stem the Crane tide. The American College of Physical Education ruined the Bengal dreams of a first class finish by upsetting the locals 35 to 31 after an inspired last minute drive as the curtain dropped down upon the Tiger basketball activities of 1931-32.

Four veterans will be the nucleus for Coach Smidl's squad next season when John Reckzeh, Leon Zissen, George Barnett and Verne Hansen return. Captain John Maloskie, Robert Placek, Gilbert Topp, Carl Alster, Fred Krupp and Edward Kraus will leave Crane.

TENNIS

IN the spring young men's fancies also turn to thoughts of tennis, for six collegians toiled diligently for the glory of Crane on the tennis courts.

Coached by "Charley" Smidl, director of physical education, whose teams in the past have compared favorably with the best of four-year colleges, the Tiger Raquetteers displayed superb form and the typical fighting spirit which has long characterized Crane teams in general and Smidl-coached aggregations in particular.

The Bengal "pill-pounders" feared no foe, and met teams representing colleges and universities rated above their class. A powerful offensive distinguished the Orange and Black style of play. Handicapped by the usual lack of training facilities, the tiger netters, nevertheless, performed in good style in their contests with such teams as Loyola, Illinois, Wheaton and Morton.

The varsity squad was selected only after a careful, analytical study of the individual style of each candidate. A school-wide tennis tournament helped to pick a first-rate squad.

James Georgacopoulos was rated as the Crane "No. 1" man, with David Rabinowitz, George LeBrint, Irving Pober, John Maloskie and Ben Zimmerman being placed in respective order.

Georgacopoulos was undoubtedly Crane's power house on the offensive. James' lightning "aces" paved the way for his stellar court work. As an all-around performer, "Jimmy" had few equals. David Rabinowitz's scintillating defensive work and fleetness featured his play. His powerful attack coupled with a strong defense made him one of the most valuable players on the team. LeBrint and Pober also starred on the courts. Despite his diminuity, LeBrint scooted about the court, recovering erratic and well-played shots with surprising ease and form. His lack of height apparently was no handicap to "Let-George-do-it." Johnny Maloskie found his antics on the basketball floor a help to his tennis activities. His brand of play, while not flashy was, nevertheless, dependable and consistent. Johnny could always be depended upon to come through in any "pinch."

Zimmerman, a freshman, showed considerable promise and skill. The team, in all, though relatively inexperienced in intercollegiate competition, showed up surprisingly well.

Coach Smidl, Maloskie, Rabinowitz, Georgacopoulos, Le Brint, Pober.

BASEBALL

DEFEATING such formidable opponents as Northwestern McKinlock Campus, Morton, De Kalb, and Armour, the Bengal baseball team finished an exceptionally successful season. Although somewhat handicapped by a lack of effective pitchers, the team continued to win games, and flawless fielding and hard hitting coupled with the excellent coaching of Coach Robert Koehler, brought good results.

Composed of only four men who have had at least a year of experience on Orange and Black teams, and five newcomers, the Tiger team presented the following front:

Wysocki, who pitched in most of the games this season for Crane, was unquestionably the first-string pitcher.

Kral, Tiger "Mickey Cochrane" of last season, will always stand out as a great backstop, offensively and defensively.

Bersted, who was used as a utility man in both the outfield and infield in 1931, gathered enviable records for himself this season in the role of first baseman. His steady hitting was the feature of his all-around good playing.

Sanborn, as the Tiger's second baseman, played a stellar game on the field and showed well at bat.

Kraus, who won his laurels last year in baseball, basketball and football, was probably one of the best and hardest hitting infielders ever to play at Crane.

Talan, a newcomer from the public high schools of Chicago, filled in capably at third base. He served as the last cog in the machine-perfect infield.

Stugois, a speedy fielder and a good batter, covered the left side of the outer garden for Crane.

Wolkoff, Kraus, Coach Koehler, Kral, Silver.

BASEBALL

Gelsomino, with his large bat and larger batting average, was the "Babe Ruth" of Crane. Playing center field, not an error blemished his record during the season.

Brownstein, also a "slugger," played right field regularly for the Bengals. "Brownie" also filled in at pitching when his teammates needed a good relief hurler.

Since there is always room for improvement in all school teams, the Bengal nine would probably have been stronger if injuries and ineligibility had not taken their toll. Captain Trim who batted about .400 last year was very ill at the beginning of the season, and was ordered by physicians to discontinue his baseball playing. Czoty, who attained the so-called baseball "Hall of Fame" several years ago when he pitched a no-hit, no-run game against Harrison High School for Crane Tech, dropped five hours of work and his baseball at mid-semester when forced to accept an outside position. Czoty hurled the season's opener, allowing Armour only six hits. Zenner, a veteran of last year's squad, also was lost to the team at mid-season.

Graduation this year will again deal a hard blow at future Crane teams when it claims such stars as Kral, veteran catcher, Bersted, slugging infielder, Sanborn, diminutive second baseman, and Kraus, versatile star in all positions of the team. However, the entire Bengal outfield will return for competition in 1933. Stugois, Gelsomino and Brownstein, will again serve in Orange and Black uniforms. Wysocki, Talan, Dann, Goldberg, Radberger, Linewicz and Rothstein are also among those who will serve as the nucleus of the next Crane team.

The baseball squad this year was capably managed by Isadore Walkoff, also manager in 1931, and Percy Silver. Walkoff will graduate in June, but Silver will return for another season at Crane.

SWIMMING

Although it did not equal the feats of the undefeated team of last year, the Tiger swimmers of 1932 was one of the best squads ever produced at Crane Junior College. The meets were closely contested, and many times the result of the contest depended on the final event. The team won five of the eight encounters and had to be satisfied with two forfeit wins. Armour was the only squad that met the Tigers twice, one point difference deciding each meet.

Their long string of victories was broken when Armour Institute of Technology revenged her former losses by defeating the Tigers, 38 to 37, in the home pool. The Crane team more than made up for this loss when the Orange and Black swimmers travelled out to Lake Forest to win by a score of 36 to 21. Wallenta's swimmers met the Armour squad again and emerged victorious by a one point margin in a very spectacular swimming meet, at the University of Chicago pool. Gary Y. M. C. A. was beaten easily. South Chicago "Y," holder of the state and city Y. M. C. A. swimming championship, beat Crane 38 to 19. Crane's old rival, Morton, was easily vanquished by the score of 44 to 31. Loyola next took a trimming at the hands of the agile Cranemen to the tune of 26 to 22. In the last encounter of the season, because of the tireless efforts of the co-managers, Herbert Lewin and George Le Brint, a meet with a Northwestern University team was held for the first time in Crane's swimming history. The Tigers came out on the short end of the 42-33 score. Lake Forest and Gary forfeited their return engagements.

Jack Ehrlich, high point man on the team with sixty-eight points, carried the brunt of the "work," having to swim in three events in every meet. Ehrlich, although beaten several times, established himself as one of the greatest swim aces ever produced at Crane College. His "times" registered in the crawl and backstroke events were by far the best ever made by any Orange and Black swimmer. Captain Howard Campbell, besides encouraging the team to victories, was the star 100-yard free style swimmer on the squad. He swam on both the 160-yard and medley relays, gathering thirty-eight points. Louis Becker, who swam the century and 160-yard relay, did a commendable job in the sprint events. He garnered forty-five markers. Ehrlich, Campbell and Becker were the only veterans to earn letters for the second time.

James Dawson, breast stroke star, earned thirty-two points in his events. He capably filled the place vacated by Dave Bizzelli, letterman, who later returned but could not obtain his championship style of last year. Stefan Bielinski kept up the tradition of his family by winning points in the breast-stroke and crawl events. William Koenig, intra-mural swimming champion, surprised everybody by leading the boys almost twice his size in the backstroke and 220-yard crawl events. His absence because of illness in two of the meets accounted for his not being among the head scorers of the team. It was Koenig who turned in a victory in the back-stroke event of the N. U. meet. Robert McConville, Crane's only diver, took second place in every encounter and always came within a few points of the winner.

Edward Timke, who came to Crane in February, made a good showing in the crawl event, but was unable to garner enough points for a major letter. Others who only swam in a few meets are: Ladof, Leviton, Westrich, Malborough, Singer, and Bizzelli. Ladof and Malborough, both lettermen, were lost when the former was graduated and the latter left school in February.

Coach George Wallenta vacated his position and his post was immediately filled by Dr. Berk. Both coaches took great interests in seeing their boys in action and always served as an inspiration to the team. Co-managers Le Brint and Lewin were responsible for scheduling more meets than ever participated in before. Timke, McConville, Bielinski, Koenig, Dawson and Westrich will return for more action in 1933.

TRACK

PROBABLY one of the most promising track teams that Crane squad ever produced was the squad of 1932. Handicapped by the ineligibility of the veterans, Al Goodman, Morris Feldman, and Augustus Bank, the Crane tracksters lost several of their meets.

Under the assiduous handling of Coach Harry J. Fausel, the team rounded into fair enough shape to win both of the indoor track meets, defeating Chicago Normal, 40½-35½, and Armour Tech., 50-45. Because the park playgrounds were closed, the team was deprived of an outdoor practice field. They continued to practice indoors and in spite of this handicap, they placed second in a meet with DeKalb and La Salle-Peru. The Bengals excelled in the field events.

Ben Nunn, a veteran track man and a former star dash man of Tuley High School, captained the Tiger team this season. He ran anchor man on the half-mile relay; and was considered the team's mainstay because of his consistent victories in the 100 and 200-yard dashes. Coach Fausel was aided by Manager Frank Shafran who is responsible for the management of the 1932 track schedule.

Of the remaining veterans, Walter Grech, who earned his "C" in the high jump was a steady and reliable victor in this event. Standing out because of his point garnering ability, Howard Asp specialized in the field events. Howard's sensational victories were the features of the Tiger track season. Spinka, another former Tuley Track star showed promise of future stardom because of his stellar performance during the entire season.

Newcomers on the Crane team are Gerald Crane, Leon Diamond, Fred Drucker, Nick Maravalo, John Barrow, Irving Kopikias, Saul Nathan, Robert

Rubin, Victor Surface, Richard Kilichowsky, Morris Belson, Ted Nicholas, and Harvey Horwitz.

Maravalo and Drucker were constant winners and placers in the high jump, while Maravolo reigned supreme in the broad jump. In the pole vault event, Drucker always won either first or second place. Gerald Crane was the only hurdler on the team. Diamond was the flash of the dashes, but he met his only superior in Bob Rubin who has coped successfully with the best in junior college competition. Saul Nathan developed into a reliable winner in the longer distance runs. The best Crane representatives in the half-mile event were Richard Kilichowsky, Ted Nicholas and Harvey Horwitz.

Taking the poor training conditions and the early season ineligibilities into consideration, the squad has turned out some surprising track material. That the future of Crane in the track field appears rosy is assured by the fact that over three-fourths of the squad will return next spring to carry on the fight for inter-collegiate track recognition.

FENCING

The Crane fencing team was extraordinarily successful in its matches this year. In a meet with the state champions, the Foil Club, the Tigers were defeated 37 to 31. However, in the Individual State Tournament the fencers were more fortunate, and Blazieh, ex-Lindbloomite, garnered second place while Roy Perlowski took the fourth position.

Al Turner managed the team and Coach Pierce was its capable sponsor.

WRESTLING

A PECULIAR wrestling season for the Crane College Grapplers was this one of 1931-32. Opening on December 13 with Morton College, the Crane lineup read: Jack Koblinsky and Joe Resnick, 118 pounds; Ralph Gradman and Louis De Hainaut, 125 pounds; Sam Krupnick (Captain), 135 pounds; Walter Pyzansky, 145 pounds; Richard Sise, 155 pounds; Jack Egdorf, 165 pounds; Leo Yeksigian, 175 pounds; Isadore Garfield, heavyweight. Of the ten, six were veterans and four new men; but by the end of February not a single one of last year's wrestlers appeared in the lineup. Captain Krupnick was forced to resign his captaincy when he acquired a job, Sise and Egdorf were graduated in January, Yeksigian and Garfield left school.

Gradman moved up to the 135 pound division and acted as captain until the end of the season. Pyzansky took Sise's place while Kelly and later Skiba replaced Egdorf in the 165 pound division; Kelly substituted for the veteran, Yeksigian; and May, heavyweight, filled Garfield's "shoes". An entirely new team—new in that the men had never wrestled under Crane colors before, but in reality composed of former high school stars—completed the '32 schedule.

The lighter divisions were further strengthened by the addition of Jack Teplitsky and Anthony Marendino, 118 pounds. Gilbert Friedman, and Richard Schoenbrod were added to 145 pound and 155 pound divisions respectively. The lineup for the remaining dual meets were: Koblinsky and Marendino, 118 pounds; Teplitsky and De Hainaut, 125 pounds; Gradman, 135 pounds; Friedman, 145 pounds; Pyzansky and Schoenbrod, 155 pounds; Skiba, 165 pounds; Kelly and Stevens, 175 pounds; and May, heavyweight.

This season, which resulted in the first two defeats, also brought eight victories—three more than had ever been won by a Tiger team in wrestling. Coach Harry J. Fausel scheduled meets with schools that Crane had never met on the mat before. DeKalb, South Side Y, and Belmont felt the strength of the Bengal bone-crushers for the first time. Crane will meet them again in future seasons. Since there was no tournament this year Crane had no opportunity of defending its Danish-American A. A. U. third place.

WRESTLING

Walter Pyzansky, 155 pound stellar wrestler, led the team in individual scoring, garnering a total of 40 points. Acting Captain, Ralph Gradman, in the 135 pound division, was runner-up with 35½ points scored, and Louis De Hainaut, a 125 pounder, followed next with 26 points. Dan Stevens totaled 16½ points; Jack Teplitsky, 13½; Jim Kelly, 13; Jack Koblinsky, 10½; Gilbert Friedman, 8½; Anthony Marendina and Joe Skilba, 7½ each; and Schoenbrod, 6. Leo Yeksigian and Captain Sam Krupnick scored points before they ended their wrestling careers last semester, "Yeks" totaling 13 points and Sam 3 in a 12 to 9 victory at Wheaton. Coach Fausel awarded letters and sweaters to Acting Captain Gradman, Pyzansky, De Hainaut, Stevens, Teplitsky, Kelly, and Koblinsky. Of the 1932 wrestlers only two will return next year: Walter Pyzansky and Louis De Hainaut.

The Tigers this year won eight meets and lost two. They defeated DeKalb once; Wheaton twice; Y. M. C. A. College twice; South Side Y. M. C. A. twice; and Belmont Y. M. C. A. once. They lost two close meets, one to Morton College and one to DeKalb. Mismanagement was probably the major reason for the two defeats. In the three years of wrestling at Crane, the three teams jointly won nineteen meets and lost two.

GOLF TEAM

FOLLOWING gamely, if not entirely successfully, in the footsteps of previous successful golf teams coached by "Doc" Davis, the 1932 squad took up its clubs against the American College of Physical Education, Armour Tech, Lake Forest Academy, Lyons Township Junior College, and the Faculty. Composed of Ted Sherwin, Ted Frystak, Matt Kondracki, Frank Stormer, Ed Stormer, Mort Eisenstein, Everett Knox, and Bob DeLamar, the team started poorly by losing two of its first three matches under unfavorable weather conditions, but gained its real stride later in the season.

Not one competing letterman was back from 1931 and Jack Berndt, the manager, was the only hold-over from the superb squad of last year. The entire group of new men, however, showed up well, and prospects for next year are bright. Ted Sherwin, a brother of Art, a star on the team several years ago, performed well in the number one position, drawing skillful opponents and holding them well in check.

Ted Frystak, a letterman in football, another of the newcomers of the team, gave a fine account of himself in the first golf competition he ever experienced. Frank Stormer, of Bowen High, and Everett Knox, formerly of Waller's golf team, lived up to their high school reputations. Matt Kondracki, also one of the candidates for the 1931 squad, played a nice game during the 1932 season, as did Ed Stormer and Bob DeLamar.

The season opened against American College in a successful manner, with Crane on the right end of an $8\frac{1}{2}$ to $3\frac{1}{2}$ score. This match was staged at Harlem Golf Club. However, in the Armour match, Crane lost, for the first time since the Techs have been meeting the Tiger on the golf course. The score stood 15 to 3 in Armour's favor in the match which was played at the Evergreen Golf Course.

The week following the Armour match the team journeyed up to Lake Forest to lose, 14 to 4, during a thunderstorm and cloudburst that almost washed away the match. Unfamiliar greens and wet grounds made the playing conditions difficult for the Crane squad, and the team expected to gain revenge, as had the 1931 golfers, by trouncing Lake Forest Academy on their home course in the return match.

The team wound up its schedule by meeting the faculty during the first week of June. After pointing for this one encounter all season, the boys had little trouble disposing of the teachers. Deans Hutchinson and Davis and Mr. Berger were among those composing the faculty squad.

WINNERS of the varsity "C" only are members of the "C" Club, Crane's athletic honor society. At present the organization has a total membership of over one hundred athletes. Since there are no prescribed organization meetings of the "C" Club, the society merely sets up standards of athletic competition, encourages sportsmanship, and attempts to foster greater school spirit.

The "C" Club has in the past semester sponsored several intra-mural athletic tournaments and has awarded gold, silver and bronze medals to winners of both regular and consolation rounds. This semester the "C" Club preserved its custom by conducting again swimming, basketball, baseball and tennis intra-mural tournaments. Members of the "C" Club, not actively engaged in the tournament, acted as referees and umpires.

The "C" Club is at present working upon two projects. The athletes plan to hold a banquet at the close of this, and the ensuing semesters. They are also striving to effect the adoption of a resolution whereby an official Crane College Athletic diploma will be awarded to all graduates earning the varsity "C." The organization of an effective alumni society is another of the future projects of the "C" Club. Coach Harry T. Fausel sponsors the "C" Club.

Spring Semester

Led by Gertrude Dubats and Virginia Kostokes, presidents during the fall and spring semesters respectively, the W. A. A. found the past year a lively one. Two important changes in organization were effected: the formation of a new constitution and the revision of the old point system. Crane also joined the National American Athletic Federation and became allied with the United Field Hockey Association.

Among the season's social activities were two roller-skating parties, one in the fall and one in the spring, and a Christmas party, "The Parade of Points." Crane girls, together with those of several other colleges, were the guests of Morton Junior College at an all-round play-day in February, and were themselves the hostesses at an outdoor play-day at Thatcher's Woods in May.

In April, one whole week was devoted to the problem of Health. A full program, arranged by Emma Shemaitis, Health Week chairman, included posture contests, free physical examinations by Dr. Irene Neuhauser, and a lecture by Dr. Mead. Each semester closed with a presentation banquet at which athletic honors—sweaters, letters, numerals and badges—were awarded. Josephine Salerno and Naomi Monger were responsible for the great success of the last banquet. Much of the success of the W. A. A. this year has been due to the tireless efforts of the publicity chairmen—Lavergne Hackenbroch in the fall, and Gertrude Dubats in the spring.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

September of 1931 saw the organization by Mrs. Katherine Curtis of a new athletic group, the P. E. Major Club, composed exclusively of girls who are majoring in Physical Education. The members act as "class assistants" to get practical teaching experience. A party given by Mrs. Curtis at the Blackstone Women's Athletic Club in February, and a Spash party in April, were among the club's activities in its first year.

BASEBALL

With a turnout of fifty players, materials for five teams, baseball came into the picture on April 20. The season lasted seven weeks with classes on Monday and Wednesday, one hour being given to organization, and one to play. For lack of an outdoor field, the "Babe Ruths" were obliged to play all their games indoors. Competition for the championship was lively, nevertheless.

BASKETBALL

Basketball saw a lively season this year under Elizabeth Liska, manager, and Mary Strand, assistant. Six inter-class teams competed in the intramural "Round-Robin" tournament, the 5A's taking home the championship. The honor team, elected at the close of the season, wrested two games from the Aurora College nine.

BILLIARDS

Billiards, the newest sport for Crane women, got off to a successful start last fall with the introduction in September of three weekly classes. An inter-hour tournament, entered by twenty-two "sisters of the cue" was run off by Emma Shemaitis, manager. In the spring semester an individual tournament, with twenty-five girls participating, was arranged by Suzanne Janovic, the second billiard manager. A billiard club, meeting bi-weekly at different recreation parlors, was this semester's innovation.

BOWLING

Five full classes this semester prove that bowling, now in its second successful year at Crane, is becoming increasingly popular. Two smashing victories over Normal by margins of 264 and 485 pins proved further the ability of the Crane pin-women. High point bowlers were entered individually in the Evening American Bowling Tournament in February, and a picked team was entered in the Chicago Women's Bowling Tournament in April. Inter-mural competition, culminating in an inter-class tournament, was featured during both semesters, the 6A's winning the fall championship. An individual meet in the spring rounded off the season.

GOLF

Last year's tournament proved that girls are becoming more interested in this sport each year. There were approximately twenty-five girls who were entered in the tournament at the Big Oaks Golf Course, the results of which were as follows: Ruth Christiansen, first, La Vergne Hackenbroch, second, and Virginia White, third. This year's tournament differed from last year's in that it was divided into two sections—north and south. Open only to players of at least one season's experience, the tournament was conducted with low medal play in each section requiring four rounds to qualify.

HOCKEY

With a well-marked, centrally-located field at Humboldt Park, and with the excellent co-operation received from the players, the hockey season of 1931 proved a great success. The classes met twice a week, on Tuesdays and Thursdays at two-thirty. Two teams, the Blacks, led by Ruth Christiansen, and the Oranges, under Naomi Monger, played out a three-game "Round-Robin" tournament in which the Oranges were victorious. A game with Chicago Normal College ended the season. The girls wish to thank Coach Hayes, Manager Randolph and Assistant Manager Schmigelski for their fine work in organization.

HIKING

Seventeen hikes—a total of 100 miles of “hoofing”—were offered to the co-eds during the past year. The fall program included a ten-mile hike to “No Man’s Land” where the hikers built a fire on the beach and had a marshmallow roast. The spring list included a steak-fry at Thatcher’s Woods to welcome prospective members, and an over-night hike to the Dunes with headquarters at Beach House Prairie Club. W. A. A. points are given for twenty miles of hiking. Ruth Shayman and Hilda Collins led the fall hike and Ruth and Rose Landfield led those in the spring.

Intra-mural meets for stars, for the intermediates, and for the beginners, inter-school competition, splash parties, and finally a pageant in the water, have made this year’s aquatic season a lively and varied one. The intra-mural meets include a three-fold meet last fall and another in the spring to determine the class and individual champions. The fall honor team included the high point winners who met the eligibility requirements as well. A beginners’ meet was one of the features of the spring term.

Meets with Normal, one at Normal and one in the Crane pool, were both lost. The results of the second meet, however, were entered in a Telegraphic Swim Meet at Wisconsin, where they competed with scores submitted by twenty-eight colleges from all over the country. The results were gratifying. Crane tied with Wisconsin, for third place, Emma Shemaitis and Genevieve Abrams of Crane placing third and fourth respectively in the 100-yard free style.

The outstanding event of the swimming season, the Spring Pageant, "The Legend of the Water Lily," in which both men and women participated, was held in the latter part of May. Manager Tuman and Assistant Manager Koehler, with the advice of Coach Curtis, were in charge of the program.

TENNIS

The high-light of the 1931 tennis season was the trip to North Central College, Naperville, Illinois, where a "Round-Robin" tournament was staged. Crane was represented by Lena Burnstein, playing singles, and Gertrude Gunther and Irma Piepho, the doubles team. The winners of the annual intra-mural tournament were Lena Burnstein, Edith Lawrence and Irma Piepho, champion, runner-up, and third place winner, respectively.

A new feature, the "Ladder Tournament," was inaugurated in the 1932 season. This type of tournament is so organized that the winner reaches the top of the "ladder" only after she has played every one on the lower rungs. There were three ladders in the tournament, the two winners on each ladder competing for the school championship.

VOLLEYBALL

Volleyball has one of the largest followings of any of the sports at Crane. About seventy-five enthusiasts turned out for practice this semester, and were organized into teams for an intra-mural tournament. An honor team was chosen at the end of the season. Volleyball was supervised by Mrs. Curtis, with Lois Nelson as manager and Ruth Cahill as assistant. The teams were captained as follows: Marcia Wilson, Mixed; Esther Onofrio, 5B; Laura Bishop, 5A; Rose Landfield, 5A; Alice Washburne, 6B; and Erleen Woods, 6A. The 5A's took home the inter-class championship.

CAPTAINBALL

THE re-introduction of Captainball this season after several years of neglect was something of an experiment. A turnout of more than forty girls, however, and the general enthusiasm with which the sport was received seem to assure it a permanent place in the athletic curriculum. A round-robin tournament was arranged by Erlene Woods, manager, and culminated in a championship battle between the "K. O.'s" and the "Nerts." The season closed with a "spread," at which the losers entertained the winners.

ROBERT J. RIORDAN
Director of Publications

UNDER the leadership of Robert J. Riordan, Director of Publications, and Ross R. Smith, Advisor of the Javelin and Collegian, both of these publications received the information, advice and aid without which they could not have been as efficiently presented. These two men have completed a year of activity in collegiate publications that will remain as one of the most competent in Crane history.

The purpose of the Collegian staff of 1932 was to present a year book that would be complete, modern, and simple in its method of presentation. Since the content of an annual is always the same, since the editing is comprised primarily of organizing pictures and written material, the scope for originality is limited considerably. Yet true originality is many times a matter of doing new things with old material, of presenting conventional material in new ways. With this knowledge in mind, then, the staff sat down to work and attempted to make the book as artistic and as original as possible within prescribed bounds. Strictly speaking the material is sacred and has a sentimental value attached which a staff does well to respect. One can't always experiment where human feelings are concerned: thus the precaution. Make the book moderately conservative, no shocking innovations, no sacrifice of content for art or originality—these bywords became our guide.

Foreward then! Since the ultimate aim of all art is simplicity, since even the Mr. Turk criticizes art firstly from the standpoint of utility and simplicity in relation to utility, we proceeded cautiously, using no superficial decoration where not necessary, asking ourselves what would be the function of this drawing and that. Now, at completion, we hope that we have succeeded in making the volume a commendable work of "year-book art." The incorporation of quotations, used to explain the drawings, was utilized with the idea of bringing in another field of art, literature. Finally, the topography which is in itself an art in the sense that it is necessary to preserve art, was also made simple in the matter of arrangement on the page.

We have worked in our theme, Democracy, not by dreamily picturing an ideal picture of what ought to be, but by criticizing what ought not to be. The Staff extends its gratitude to Mr. Quinn for his assistance.

To Mr. Moran of Gunthorp-Warren Printing Company, the Collegian Staff is sincerely obligated for his co-operation. We hope the graduates will find the book somewhat to their liking.

During the fall term, Carl Foreman, the first editor to be elected by student democracy at Crane, headed the staff. When, because of financial difficulties, Carl was obliged to drop out of school, Saul K. Ellman was picked as acting editor. The members of the editorial board were: Nathan Haber, Sylvia Pass, Sam Krupnick, Gilbert Topp, Norton Claypool and David Malkemus. Later in the semester, with the changes in administration, Sidney Gerson, Meyer Rosenzweig, and William Unfanger were made associates.

In the spring of 1932, Sylvia Pass was elected editor-in-chief. During this term, Irving Sandrowitz, technical, Alfred Teton, feature, Herbert Puckowitz, news, and Gilbert Elliason, sports, composed the associate staff.

Both the Fall and Spring staffs introduced new features, revived old ones, and improved the paper. The "Rostrum" permitted readers of the "Javelin" to air their views in the paper; "Runnin' Wild" was made strictly a contributory column; the makeup of the paper was changed and enlivened considerably; and the editorial column began to express the sentiments of the editor.

When the Board of Education passed the budget which provided for the maintenance of Crane College, last March, a special issue—a miniature one—was put out by the "Javelin" as an extra scoop. Including this highlight, the routine was somewhat lessened when the coeds published their issue in winter and when the regular staff put out the issue deluxe for the Mummer's Club.

PEN AND PAD

THE Pen and Pad has just concluded what are, without a doubt, two of its most successful semesters. This is due in part, to the fact that the magazine was published as a project of the creative writing class. That is, the editors and staff members were chosen from the creative writing class, and publication of the best material was used as an incentive to the students of that class. This method resulted in more assurance of contributions than the magazine had in the past. This did not mean, however, as some persons thought, that the magazine was a "closed affair." On the contrary, the rest of the school was not only asked, but urged, to contribute. There were, incidentally, almost seventy-five contributors.

A contest was held in the art classes in an attempt to find a truly distinctive cover design. Hubert Leckie's drawing was chosen and was used on five out of six issues. This standardization of the cover helped give the magazine a professional air. The school colors were used, black on heavy orange paper. As for the interior of the magazine, heavy enamel paper was used. The make-up was said—by outsiders who had a right to make such statements—to make the Pen and Pad the best looking of college magazines.

MISS LOUISE HANNAN

DEDICATION of the Mummers' play this year is to Miss Louise Hannan, a former instructor in both the high school and the college, who, for many years, aided in the production of the yearly play at Crane.

Miss Hannan had a varied experience in teaching. After having received a degree of Bachelor of Arts from the University of Chicago, she began teaching at the Von Humboldt grammar school. It was here that she first made the acquaintance of William J. Bartholf who was at the time principal of the school.

She taught at Von Humboldt for many years, rising to the position of district supervisor of music. Mr. Bartholf had already become principal of the Crane Technical high school, and, knowing her true worth, he had her assigned to Crane.

Here her courses in music led to the giving of the operettas. In 1918, the operetta Priscilla was given by the high school at the People's Institute Theatre. In 1919, the Pirates of Penzance was also given at the People's Institute Theatre.

Marshall high school was the scene of the next operetta, Pinafore, in 1920. Trial By Jury, in 1921, was also given at this school.

The first operetta given in the assembly hall of this school was The Doctor of Alcantaria in 1922.

All orchestral arrangements for the June productions were handled by her until 1929.

Greatly beloved by all, as "Dear teacher," and sincerely mourned, she passed away a few months after discontinuing teaching.

THE PLAY

"UP in the Air," the tenth anniversary production of the Mummer's Club, was presented at the Kenneth Sawyer Goodman Memorial Theater Friday evening, June 3. This play, written by Mr. William F. Madden, the sponsor of the club and the dramatic director, is a modern farce-comedy dealing with the activities of the United States Air Force

The second comedy in two years to be given by the Mummies, "Up in the Air" received enthusiastic acclaim from a capacity house, and its presentation proved the occasion of a real home-coming for the many Crane alumni who had taken important parts in Mr. Madden's nine previous productions.

The settings of the play, an airport and a hotel lobby, offered a great opportunity for clever work to the stage staff in the matter of costumes, properties, and lighting effects, and Sam Spinka and his corps of assistants deserve much credit for the originality of their work.

"U. S. Air Force Under Suspicion"—an Irksome Situation in "Up In The Air."

UP IN THE AIR

The business management of the play was handled by Mr. Robert J. Riordan and Jack Berndt, aided by a capable staff of assistants. Mr. Robert Gomer Jones was kind enough to supervise the orchestral accompaniment to the play, and Mr. R. R. Smith assisted in the management of the annual Mummers' Issue of the Javelin.

The element of the chase, which Mr. Madden's technique students will recognize as an important part of a successful comedy, is a prominent factor in "Up in the Air." This farce-comedy device is ably utilized by such master comedians and actors as Sherman Marks, Dan Robertson, Al Frishman, and Bud Hinkle in the play.

The love interest is supplied by Bud and Bernice Rea, who, after many trials and tribulations in the course of the action, finally reunite at the end and presumably marry and live happily ever after. Comedy parts are well taken care of by Sherman Marks, Dan Robertson, Abe Berkson, and Al Frishman, in the parts of the Hotel Clerk, the polished crook, the Hotel Detective, and the Hotel Manager, respectively.

THE Honor Society is a relatively new organization at Crane. It was first organized in 1930 by a group of students who had a 2.5 average or better for two consecutive semesters. This group of students drew up the constitution and set a 2.5 average for entrance requirement, a requirement which exists up to date. Any student who has had a 2.5 average for two consecutive semesters is automatically eligible for membership in the society and is awarded a gold honor medal upon application for entrance. The medal is presented by Dean Hancock in recognition of the scholastic ability of the student. The student is then a permanent member of the Honor Society for the rest of his or her career at Crane.

The primary object of the Honor Society is to serve as a stimulus for better scholastic achievement in the college and to act as an informative center where students might go for knowledge concerning scholarships at the leading universities. It is the aim of the society to establish a scholarship fund of its own with which Crane students of high standing could be sent on to a four college.

With the able and interested assistance of Miss Griffin, sponsor, the Honor Society the organization has been exceedingly active in college affairs, and in a short time expects to realize its dream of scholarship fund.

During the past semester the Honor Society was invited to join Phi Beta Theta, a national honor society.

"IN order to supply, maintain, and preserve the good traditions and a wholesome spirit of solidarity among the students of Crane Junior College and to voice the opinion and defend the interests of the student body, this instrument, to be known as the Student Council of Crane Junior College, has been devised."

Democracy! That is the keynote of student government at Crane; that is the foundation upon which student government at Crane is based; and that is the spirit that permeates the Student Democracy Code.

During the short span in which the Student Council has been functioning, the preamble of the Student Democracy Code, quoted above, as well as the entire Democracy Code has been its guiding light. All the legislation and all the regulations passed by the council have had as their chief objective the realization of a true democratic spirit at Crane. Whether the Council has succeeded in achieving its end can be judged easily upon the basis of past accomplishments.

Headed by Irving Steinberg during the fall semester, Abraham Minkus during the spring term, and with Mr. Atteberry always at hand, ready and willing to advise the group of student legislators whenever the need might arise, the council made great progress and removed any doubt as to the justification of student government at Crane.

The year for the council has been one filled with activity and excitement. Beginning with the time when the very existence of Crane was threatened, the Student Council took an active part in stirring up student opinion and in flooding the state legislatures with petitions for the continuance of Crane. No sooner had this crisis passed, when the council was again busy petitioning for the passage of the Board of Education budget so that Crane's existence would be ensured.

In keeping with its traditional functions, the council elected the editors of the College publications, conducted the class elections—which were improved to a great extent—and helped with the registration.

The council also took an important step toward establishing the organizations at Crane more firmly by issuing charters to all school societies and clubs.

A forward step was taken by the council when it revised the eligibility requirements for class officers, by changing the requirements from merely an "M" average to a requirement of a 1.5 scholastic standing during the entire collegiate career of the candidate.

Student interest in the council was aroused through the co-operation of the Javelin; and frequently students came to the meetings, took part in the discussions, and helped shape the legislation of the body.

The 1931 councilors were: Sarah Cagan, Harry Plotnick and Irving Steinberg for the 6A class; Harry Novak, Maurice Perlin and Dorothy Beederman for the 6B class; Lena Burnstein, Leon Cooke, and Laura Sher for the 5A class; Ann Helman, Alfred Teton, and Nat Grossblat for the 5B class; Abraham Minkus from the Literature and Arts school; Robert Wahl from the Pre-Medic school; Carl Aster from the Engineering school; Byron Sayre from the Pre-Legal school, Carol Kinney from the Coeds Club; Charles Gustafson from the Commerce and Administration school, and Herbert Tuchinsky from the Men's Club.

The 1932 councilors were: Dorothy Beederman, Mildred Johnson and Irving Steinberg for the 6A class, Fanny Goldberg, Marvin Martin and Laura Sher for the 6B class; Alfred Teton, Percy Silber and Ann Helman for the 5A class; Harold Dray, Milton Rosenthal and Esther Zaretsky for the 5B class; Abraham Minkus from the Literature and Arts school; George Kvidera from the Pre-Medical school; Fred Drucker from the Engineering school; Richard Seip, Carol Kinney from the Coeds Club; Charles Gustafson from the Commerce and Administration school, and Maurice Kaplan from the Men's Club.

IN October, 1931 the Pre-Legal Club, an organization founded at Crane many years ago under the guidance of Mr. Everett R. Hutchinson, changed its name to the Blackstone Club in honor of Sir William Blackstone, the famous commentator on the English law.

The past school year has undoubtedly been the most successful in the long history of the group, and the cooperative activities of the members and officers have served to consolidate the interests of the organization, and to further its aim, the closer union of Pre-Legal students, the furtherance of interest in legal matters, the spread of legal information, and service to the college at all times.

In line with its policy the Blackstone has secured speakers of note who have addressed the club on matters of legal interest. Daniel Anderson, of the United States District Attorney's office, Mr. Swanson, State Representative, Mr. Auble, Mr. Atteberry and Mr. Hendrix of Crane's faculty were among the speakers at the Blackstone Club during the past season.

In the spring semester the Pre-Legalites accomplished much toward the fulfilment of their aims. They presented a mock trial, a breach of promise suit between Henrietta Zander and Bim Gump, which, aside from being genuinely entertaining, brought out the facts of courtroom procedure. The club also held a Freshman Mixer to welcome the freshmen students of the Pre-Legal school. However, the achievement of the year was the presentation of an all-school assembly at which Judge H. V. De Young, of the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois was the guest of honor.

THE Crane Celtic Club was founded in 1927 by a group of Irish students under the leadership of John Ford and Frank Cowan, in order to further the study of Irish literature and culture among the students of Irish descent, and to promote a democratic spirit among them.

During the four years of its short history, the Crane Celtic Club has been a nucleus from which Celtic movements have spread into other educational institutions. The Crane Celtic Club has encouraged the organization of other such chapters in De Paul University, Loyola University, and Lewis Institute. A committee of alumni and student members of the respective chapters are constructing a constitution to be submitted to all the clubs. The resulting unity and contact of the chapters will be for the mutual advancement of their purpose.

Mr. William F. Madden, sponsor of the organization, although extremely busy with dramatic activities, still had time to lend his Irish fun-loving spirit to the group. The entertainment of the club during the past year also added to its attractiveness. Socials were held about twice a month at the homes of various club members, to bring about a more friendly contact among the "Celts." There were also two lectures on "Irish Literature," by Professor J. H. Feldman, and a talk by Robert Maloney, one of the alumni. The club has another unusual feature: its masculine constituents have formed a basketball team which brings its Irish vim into play. The outstanding social event of the year was the St. Patrick's Day dance, held on March seventeenth, at the Bismarck Hotel.

FROM the victories of the preliminary intermurals held at the beginning of the semester, Coach Peterson formed a Free-Trade team that won the highest honor in the South Shore Forensic League, of which Crane is a member.

Beginning with a dual victory over the night-school teams, the College trios entered the League schedule, and in rapid succession split dual debates with North Park and Wheaton Colleges. The Crane debaters then won a dual over Morton Junior College which placed them in a tie for first place with Morton.

The tie was decided in a heated bout held at Northwestern in May where three judges unanimously gave Crane the laurels. The League cup was presented to the teams at an all-school assembly held to honor Judge de Young. On the same occasion, Maurice Kaplan, captain of the teams, was presented with a key for outstanding merit in debate. Kaplan, incidently, also won the intermural key, while Singer took second place in the same contests.

Crane's economic-planning debate teams also made a fine showing this semester. Early in February, a mixed squad—Ray Mesirow, Esther Shactman, and Captain Byron Sayre—gained a moral victory from Marquette University of Milwaukee in a non-decision meet. Later in the semester two regular economic-planning squads shared a dual bout with the De Paul teams. The affirmative trio — Sollie Brandzel, Morris Miller, and Captain Ray Mesirow—won their forensic duel, while the negative team—Sarah Cagan, Helen Appleman, and Captain Esther Shactman—found the opposition too great.

It is almost inevitable that Crane will take on an even higher rank in active forensic circles in the future.

IN October 1931, about sixty-five of Crane's French students organized the "Cercle Français," to express themselves "à la française" and to stimulate interest in the French language. Three interesting groups make up the club, meeting once every week. They are "Le Théâtre Français," "Les Bavards," and "L'Orphéon." Miss Shipman heads the club as a whole, while the "Orphéon" is sponsored by Miss Blanc. Both have helped to make the French programs charming and colorful.

To "Le Théâtre" must be given special credit for several one-act plays delivered with spicy French zest. The comedies given during the fall semester were "La Leçon de Français," "Cupidon, Dentiste," and "Le Médecin Mystifié." The following semester witnessed the presentation of these laugh-provoking plays: "L'Anglais Del Qu'on le Parle" and "La Dame de Bronze."

"Les Bavards" were a group of chattering enthusiasts, while those interested in exercising the vocal chords in French formed "L'Orphéon." The latter group contributed a number to the all-school Christmas program, and added much to the appeal of the Théâtre Français production.

The group "get together" of the fall semester was the dinner held in the cosy atmosphere of La Louisiane, a typical French restaurant. A theatre party to the performance of "Le Voyage de Monsieur Perrichon" at the Goodman Theatre was another important social event of the Spring Season.

UNDER the able guidance of its sponsor, Miss Claire O'Hair, the Sociology Club has completed another eventful and successful semester of work. When the circulation of books was discontinued due to the slashing of the school budget, the Sociology Club sponsored a co-operative student contribution of two hundred dollars to continue circulation. For initiating and leading this successful democratic enterprise, the Sociology Club was highly commended by the administration.

The Sociology Club together with the sociology classes has had an excellent opportunity to observe social conditions. This type of work, engaged in by thirty-five to forty students, consists of volunteer service in various settlement houses of the city.

Many excursions of interest have been undertaken. Trips to such institutions as Hull House and Eli Bates House have provided valuable material for investigation and study.

The programs of the organization have been made attractive by well-known speakers who lectured on live sociological problems.

The object of the organization is to interest the students at Crane College in the social problems and topics of the day. It is desirable that the student become aware of the social phenomena that confront him in order to make himself fit for the carrying of his social burdens. In fact, the organization has taken as its motto the words of the eminent sociologist, Hankins, who says, "The best test of intelligence is daily living." An attempt is being made, therefore, to interest the student in sociology as scientific study of social life

THE Mummers' Club, led by Marion "Bud" Hinkle, enjoyed an extremely successful season during the tenth year of its popular sponsor, Mr. William Madden at Crane. This dramatic organization climaxed its work for the year by assisting ably in the production of the tenth annual play in Mr. Madden's regime, "Up in the Air," a Madden farce-comedy.

The club, in the earlier years of its organization, existed solely for the purpose of sponsoring the June Play, but since then it has grown to be one of the most popular groups in Crane, meeting once a week and offering an opportunity for expression to the student talented in dramatic art. Working in conjunction with the drama classes and holding social meetings practically every week of the semester, the club uncovered much undiscovered talent and furnished entertainment for the meetings of many other organizations of the school.

In order to acquaint the members with the work of professional actors, several theatre parties were organized to see the productions at the loop playhouses. They also witnessed the presentation of "The Golem" by the players of the J. P. I., in order to see how other amateur groups performed.

Unlike many other clubs, the Mummers keep in close touch with their alumni, and two features of their program for the past year were alumni banquet get-togethers, the first given late in 1931, and the other about a month before the annual production in 1932.

THE Pre-Medical Club was organized for the purpose of offering the Crane pre-medical student the opportunity of keeping in continual contact with the progress and activity in his chosen profession. This club, one of the oldest organizations at Crane, has achieved its aim by introducing in its group the outstanding leaders from every branch of the medical profession.

Due to the importance of the comparatively new field of medical science, Psychiatry, the club featured two of the foremost leaders in this branch, Dr. Gentry and Dr. Hale. Dr. Gentry of the Psychopathic Hospital spoke before the group at one of its regular meetings on "The Legal Aspects of the Medical Profession." Dr. Hale, Professor of Psychiatry at the Northwestern University, selected "Psychiatry" as his subject.

As a part of their program, each semester the club visits various medical institutions to view the recent developments in the medical world. Foremost of the institutions visited are the Municipal Tuberculosis Sanitarium and Dunning.

As a fitting climax to their annual activities, the Pre-Medical Club sponsors an annual dinner in honor of former graduates of Crane Junior College who have successfully passed the Internes Entrance Examination at Cook County Hospital. This event tends to form a close bond between alumni and under-graduates of the Crane Pre-Medical School.

During the past year it has gained exceeding popularity among both groups and is very well attended.

Much credit for their successful career is due to the sponsor, Mr. Meyer.

AVUKAH is the name of the American Student Zionist Federation. It has branches in every important university in the country, and its aims are to install in the Jewish student a belief in Zionism, the return of the Hebrew to his own land.

The history of the Crane Avukah organization during the years 1931-1932 is divided into two periods; that under the leadership of Leo Shapiro, from September, 1931 to February, 1932, and that under the leadership of Hy Shaine, from February, 1932 to June, 1932.

During the first period, Avukah broke away from the minor position which it had heretofore occupied, and rose to a status of comparative importance. For the first time, the organization had a definite program framed at the beginning of the term, to which they adhered strictly throughout the semester; for the first time, the meetings were attended by large numbers of the students who were really interested in the work of the organization. Consequently, at the end of the semester, the untiring efforts of the officers were rewarded by a charter, a prize for which Avukah had worked since it had come into existence several years before.

During the second period, Avukah continued the progress which it had begun the semester before. Several noted speakers and social events comprised the semester's activities. On April 6, James Waterman Wise, editor and Zionist leader, spoke on the subject of Avukah. Two weeks later, the organization sponsored a dance which was a great social success. At the conclusion of the semester, Avukah sponsored a Hebrew day for the purpose of acquainting the student body with Hebrew lore and culture.

PERHAPS the activities of the Men's Club during the past two semesters can best be characterized with but one word—"diverse." For the events in which this large organization took part—it has 1200 members—ran the gamut from presenting numerous dances both in and out of school, to establishing a $300 loan fund for needy students. Not only do the members deserve an enthusiastic pat on their respective shoulders for their fine co-operation, but all the officers of the organization must indeed be highly commended for an unusual display of initiative and ability. Too, Dean David Davis must be given his due share of applause for his untiring efforts on behalf of the club.

However, let us review in detail what events were sponsored by the organization. At the beginning of each semester smokers were held at which the men students and men faculty members were given an opportunity to get better acquainted. Practically once every month a dance was held in the small gym, which invariably was a social success. And as a climax to these school dances, a large dance was held in the Garfield Park Refectory. This affair, too, was well-attended and provided an excellent evening's entertainment.

Still emphasizing the social side of their program, the club held a circus at which the talent of the school was assembled in a varied and novel program. In June an outing was held in Thatcher's Woods.

To show that their spirit of co-operation was undaunted, the Men's Club co-operated with the Coeds' Club in some of the important social events of the season.

The second and revised edition of the Student Handbook, made its appearance late during the past semester. Sponsored by the Men's Club, it served as a means of placing at the disposal of the men and women students a directory of facts concerning the college and its activities. The book contains articles on extra-curricular activity, complete annals of all organizations and secret societies, and a list of leaders in every form of student endeavor. Among its features are numerous illustrations relating to the many phases of curricular and extra-curricular activities, including portraits of the administration and faculty.

Taking into consideration the excellent record achieved by the club under the capable leadership of Herbert Tuchinsky and Maurice Kaplan, and guided by the inimitable "Doc" Davis, any Crane student can point with pride to the organization representative of the entire body of men students.

The Fund proved to be one of the outstanding developments in student aid that had ever been initiated into the school by any organization. During times of stress the needy student has found the Fund to be both available and beneficial.

THE Green Tea given by the Coeds' Club was held Tuesday, September 29 in the library. The guest of honor was Mr. Lewis E. Meyers, president of the Board of Education. The honorary members of the Coeds' club, Mrs. Hefferan, Mrs. J. Leonard Hancock, Mrs. William Bogan, and Mrs. William Buck, were invited to the tea. Miss Vivian Harmon sang several delightful solos. The lunch hour lectures of this semester included addresses by such interesting personalities as Judge Mary Bartelme, Judge of the Juvenile Court; Miss Harriet Vittum, head resident of the Northwestern University Settlement; and Mrs. Minnie Schmitt world famous costumer.

Perhaps the outstanding occasion of the semester was the lecture and exhibition given by Mrs. Schmitt. Mrs. Schmitt dressed figurines to represent sixty of the greatest women in history. The speaker made a guessing game of the identification of the women and told many anecdotes of their lives.

The Christmas Party was held at the Northwestern Settlement House on Saturday afternoon, December 19. The girls of the Y. W. C. A. volunteered to do the work of dressing the dolls given away to the poor children on that occasion. Miss Barbara Creviston was chairman.

During the winter semester from September, 1931, to February, 1932, The Women's Council was made up the following students: Carol Kinney, president of the Coeds' Club; Edith Lawrence, vice-president; Lena Burnstein, secretary; Mary Burns, Treasurer; Gertrude Dubats, representative of the Women's Athletic Association; Laurette Tracy, representative of the Young Women's Christian Association; Anna Mabel Tyner, representative of Publications; Blanche Weil and Barbara Creviston, representative of sororities.

During the spring semester from February to June, 1932, the Women's Council, representing the Coeds' Club was made up of the following students: Carol Kinney, president of the Coeds' Club; Arleen Pritchard, vice-president;

I. Tracy, Lawrence, Kinney, Bernstein, Mary Burns, Tyner, Dubats, Weil.

COED'S CLUB

Nora Muller, secretary; Genevieve Stoker, treasurer; Barbara Creviston and Edna Sonken, sorority representative Myra Burmester, representative from the Young Women's Christian Association; Gertrude Dubats, representative from the Women's Athletic Association, and Edith Lawrence, representative chosen by Miss Josephine Doniat, Dean of Women; and Sylvia Pass, representative for publications.

The Council meets regularly in the office of the Dean of Women on Tuesdays at noon. At this time the group discusses the problems of the women students and plans for the Coeds' Club meetings and social functions. An additional work taken over by the Council this semester is the editing of a courtesy book the aim of which is to set the criterion for social forms at this college and thereby help the students to enjoy more fully the social functions provided. To Miss Doniat belongs the credit for such a constructive idea.

For the past few semesters the Coeds' Club has made efforts to help the freshmen women students adjust themselves to college life by meeting with them during registration week. Each incoming student is assigned to a student advisor whose tastes and interests are similar to her own. The freshman is thereby able to make friends more quickly and fit herself more easily into the college life.

The traditional Green Tea was held in the library on Thursday, February 25 at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. Anna Wilmarth Ickes, representative at the legislature of the state of Illinois, and Miss Lillian Herstein of our own faculty were guests of honor. Both women were instrumental in the agitation for the legalization of Crane Junior College.

Rose Day, capably managed by Sarah Cagan, was held on Wednesday, April 20, and proved to be a gala event as well as a financially successful one.

The meetings of the Coeds' Club are informal occasions held on Wednesdays at noon. The coeds meet in room 300 to hear dramatic readings, musical programs, and lectures. We shall remember with a great deal of pleasure the presentation of "The Finger of God" by Miss Ruth La Rue and the talk on quilts given by Miss Elizabeth Robertson, supervisor of art in the public schools.

ALTHOUGH the membership of the Engineering Club of Crane was originally limited to the students in the General Engineering Course, the interest manifested by the students of other courses in its activities, caused the membership in this group to be opened to all those wishing to join and participate in its various functions.

The organization was founded for a three-fold purpose: to discuss problems in Engineering and to learn to overcome obstacles discovered by this study, to prepare the student to enter the engineering field as a vocation, and to encourage good fellowship among the members.

In order to fulfil these purposes, talks by well-known speakers and authorities in the field of engineering were arranged, illustrated lectures and motion pictures concerning engineering were attended, and visits were made to various industrial establishments.

Foremost in the events of the past year were visits to the firm of J. T. Ryerson and Son, Crane Plumbing Fixtures Company, Chicago Lighting Institute, and the International Harvester Company. An eminent speaker on the year's program was Mr. Henry Penn, of the American Institute of Steel Construction, who gave a thorough and constructive talk on "Iron and Steel and Their Relations to Construction Work." The outstanding presentation of the year was "Keeping The Cars Rolling", a motion picture accompanied by a lecture on the engineering principles involved.

As supervisor of the activities of the Club, Mr. Ferdinand Fischer, the sponsor of the group, deserves credit for its excellent record during the past year.

THE Botany Club, organized in 1930, under the leadership of Mr. Ross B. Wynne, is one of the foremost clubs of Crane Junior College. The membership has been continually growing due to the extra curricular activities and social functions given by the club during the past semester.

At each meeting several members have charge of a program in which some student lectures on the information he has received in some of his research work or something he has seen or experimented with during the month. The meetings are well attended and prove to be interesting and educational to the students whether or not they are interested in botany.

The club has, on many of the Saturdays during the last semester, undertaken several field trips to nearby lakes and Forest Preserves to study plant life which the students all agree could really be considered as picnics. These outings have been one of the clubs leading activities during the spring season.

Through the courtesy of the advisor, Mr. Ross B. Wynne, the club has attended outside lectures in a group, and secured many interesting speakers for their weekly meetings. During the last semester a large number of new slides from Germany were donated to the club's library of films and slides.

The officers of this organization have during the last semester, put forth some excellent efforts to make this club achieve their ideals.

SINCE its founding in May, 1930, the Mathematics club has enjoyed almost a unique popularity among the college scholastic societies. The club has consistently had a large following at its lectures, movies, and trips to points of astronomical interest. In regard to the latter, it is noteworthy that the Mathematicians have given astronomy an important position in their activities.

Unlike other societies, the majority of lectures given before the Mathematics club were on papers written by the student members of the club themselves. Supplementing these lectures, many members of the mathematics faculty, Dr. Lange, Mr. Gorsline and Dr. Kinney, among others, have spoken on mathematical and astronomical topics: the meeting of the parallel lines, the operations of computing machines, and other kindred subjects.

Among the students who have made special researches and reports are Planitz who spoke on the life and works of Galileo, Bisone on mathematical oddities and on measuring interplanetary distances, Borisoff on unlisted properties of the parabola, and Malkemus on the construction of a telescope. The club members also had the opportunity of disproving a proffered theory on the trisection of the angle.

The mathematicians have often employed the telescope on the roof of the college—Oakley and Van Buren side—for examining sun spots and craters of the moon. Trips were also made by the club to the Adler planetarium and the Yerkes observatory at William's Bay, Wisconsin. Finally, several scientific movies were sponsored by the Mathematicians. These movies included "A Trip to the Moon," "The Origin of the Earth," and "The Adler Planetarium."

Scholastically, the greater percentage of the Mathematicians are honor students. This fact, coupled with the versatile activities mentioned above, justify the assertion that the Mathematics Club is one of the most successful societies at Crane College.

THE El Craneano Club was founded to promote interest in Spanish life among Spanish students by acquainting them with the customs, traditions, and the atmosphere of Old Spain and other Spanish-speaking nations. By conducting their business meetings and entertaining programs in the Spanish language, the members attain the ability of conversing fluently in Spanish.

El Craneano creates an attitude of fellowship between teachers and students, successfully attained through their associations in this field of common interest. At the meetings the Spanish student becomes familiar with fine arts of Old Spain; its music, its literature, the customs, problems, and scenic wonders of Spanish-speaking nations are portrayed before the club by those familiar with Spanish life through their associations with Spanish people and experiences in Spanish countries.

Among the entertaining activities of the club are skits and playlets illustrating the racial characteristics of Spaniards. These renditions have been highly successful because of the diligence of a capable group of actors. To add to the atmosphere, the members play Spanish games using the native rules and tongue.

Foremost among its activities each year, the club sponsors a Fiesta. At this affair the members appear in Spanish costumes, accompanying them with Spanish songs and dances.

El Craneano fosters an increasing interest in the social problems of Spain and our Spanish-speaking neighbors in the New World.

THE Italian Club has been rapidly increasing in membership since its founding in 1929 and has this semester over 100 members. The club was organized for the purpose of stimulating an interest in the Italian language and literature; of promoting a recognition of the contributions of Italy to world art and literature; of increasing the interest in scholarship in the Italian department by awarding a trip to Rome; and of aiding the students by giving them access to more Italian literary works.

The outstanding event of the Italian Club during the last semester was the presentation of the Third Annual "Italian Nite", which was presented with the co-operation of the evening courses in Italian. Two plays were given—one in English enacted by the dramatic group of the evening school classes and the other—a play in Italian given by the day school classes of the Italian Club. A well known operatic star, Mr. Pietro Marchi, tenor, who is noted for his strong, clear voice, contributed several selections from famous operas through which he attained a world wide reputation. These musical numbers were followed by a short address by Judge Alleghretti, a well known judge of the Boys Court in Chicago. As a fitting climax to the program a social dance was held in the gymnasium.

Another outstanding activity of this group is the recent formation of a circulating library by which students have access to numerous books that are not otherwise obtainable. Each student in the club willingly donates a small sum of money each semester which, when combined with the profits of "Italian Nite," is set aside to purchase new books for the ever growing library.

Much of the credit for the progress of the club is due to the unselfish diligence of their sponsor, Dr. Albachiara.

ORGANIZED during the past semester by a group of young negro men and women, the Literati Club has already become a potent factor in the social and cultural activities of the college. The club was established to foster better scholarship and to promote a broader and more vital understanding of the negro's cu'tural background.

In order to help accomplish its first aim the club contributed funds to the Sigma Lambda Sigma sorority which presents a scholarship to the negro girl graduate with the highest scholarship average.

To show due cause for their raison d'etre the organization held discussions at every meeting on various phases of negro poetry, art, and prose. During the meetings, readings from various contemporary writers are featured.

Special features achieved during the semester were a dance and a musicale both of which were held in May. A debate with Beta Omega Phi was conducted on the subject "Shall fraternities and sororities be abolished?" The Literati argued the affirmative victoriously.

THE Commerce Club, organized in September, 1930, was formed for the prime purpose of introducing the student of the Commerce school to the various fields of his vocation. The expressed aims of the organization are: to form a union of Commerce students; to provide entertainment and instruction; and to aid the members of the Commerce school. Through the untiring efforts of its founders and of the competent administrators, the club has gained a position among the foremost organizations of the college, in spite of its short existence.

In pursuance of its purpose, the club has provided many varied and interesting activities. These activities comprise visits, lectures, and informal gatherings. Among the trips taken were visits to the Board of Trade, to the Federal Reserve Bank, and to the steel mills. Outstanding among the speakers at Commerce Club meetings was Dean Spencer of the University of Chicago School of Commerce and Administration, who spoke on present day problems. Speeches by Dean Daniels of Northwestern School of Commerce, and by the deans of the DePaul and Loyola University Commerce Schools were arranged. Their talks were both interesting and instructive. Speaking on some aspect of the economic situation at the present time, they offered the commerce student valuable information and advice concerning his field of endeavor.

Under the administration of Joseph Walano, president of the club during the fall semester, assisted by Lois Katz, vice-president, Blanche Weil, secretary, and Stanley Johnson, treasurer, a program of college service was planned. Invitations were extended to all students to accompany the club on its field trips. A social and dance was planned. Encouraged by the creditable execution of their plans, the organization was enabled to carry out a program which was a credit to them and to their school.

COMMERCE CLUB

During the spring semester Stanley Johnson was the efficient leader of the club and was ably assisted by Edward Stormer, Faith Tompkins, and Charles Gustafson.

The membership drive as launched by the Commerce Club is distinguished by its systematic, businesslike operation. To reach all the Commerce students, the instructor of each Commerce class appointed a club agent in that class to meet with other such agents at specified times to receive encouragement, instructions, and tickets. The agent sold the membership tickets in the class from which he was appointed. By this method almost every member of the Commerce school was induced to become a member of the Commerce Club.

The treasury of the club portrays a distinct commercial trait in that it has continually been in a sound financial condition.

With the co-operation of the entire group of Commerce students, and guided by the supervision of Mr. Hunt and Mrs. Walton, the Commerce Club has been enabled to attain the status of one of the most important clubs at Crane, being one of the first organizations to be chartered by the Student Council.

According to President Stanley Johnson, one of the main purposes of the club during the last semester has been to formulate an acquaintanceship between the members of the Commerce school. To judge from the attitudes of the Commerce students, the club has been successful in attaining its purpose.

The work of Mrs. Walton and Mr. Hunt, sponsors of the club, has been of particular value to the organization. Their supervision of the organization of the club and their continued helpful advice and activity has led the Commerce Club to a position in college life that it could not have attained otherwise. Unusual co-operation has been shown by the faculty of the Commerce and Administration schools, their efforts being extended to increase membership and bolster the spirit of the commerce group.

R. O. T. C.

Officer in Charge—MAJOR MOULD, U. S. A., Rtd.

Fall Semester

Lt. Col. Arthur J. Sauer — Battalion Commander — Lt. Col. John W. Cunningham

Spring Semester

UNDER the personal direction of Maj. W. E. Mould, the college R. O. T. C. has been rounded out into an efficient military organization. The aim of the R. O. T. C. has been, and is, that of developing better citizenship. It is also interested in the training of Crane cadets so that their work may aid them in becoming better fitted for appointment in the Officers Reserve Corps of the United States Army.

Instruction in advanced subjects has been given. The theory of combat principles, command, first aid, hygiene, guard duty, marksmanship and drill principles among them.

In September the Crane College R. O. T. C. under orders of the Chicago High Schools R. O. T. C. headquarters, by which the battalion is governed, started the use of a new drill system, as part of an experiment. This new system, designed by officers of the Infantry School at Fort Banning, simplified the movement of men in close order formations. The experiment has proven that the new drill formation is successful under most conditions.

The school year 1931-1932 saw no military ball held by the Crane Battalion as in previous years, chiefly because of the All-City Ball held by the Chicago R. O. T. C. Alumni Association.

Maj. Mould's best efforts were put forth in training the rifle team, which was—considering the type of competition, which consisted of university and four-year college teams—highly successful. The members of the team were: Lt. Peterson, Lt. Hudson, Capt. Weaver, Lt. Caul, and Capt. Bickel; alternates were: Lt. Tandrup, Lt. Fox, Maj. Petito, Lt. Buckendahl, and Capt. Hrast.

Unification and furtherance of social interests of cadets is the purpose of the Crane Military Club, organized last March. Marvin Dee was elected President, and Peter Petito Vice-President of the organization.

The annual inspection of the Crane College and High School units was held on May 18, 1932, the two units being organized as a regiment of two battalions. Lt. Col. John Cunningham was in command, aided by a regimental staff consisting of Maj. Julius Berman, Adjutant, and Lt. Stippey, aide. The College battalion was led by Maj. Charles Gustavson and consisted of two companies of two platoons each. Maj. Johnson commanded Co. A, while Maj. Petito was in charge of Co. B, assisted by Maj. Sabath.

The inspection was thorough and minute, testing the knowledge and efficiency of the cadets to the full. Col. A. V. P. Anderson, R. O. T. C. Officer of the 6th Corps Area, accompanied by Majors Beals and Moore, was the inspecting officer.

The Colonel arrived at Altgeld Park at 9:30 A. M., directly after the regiment had formed. Immediately upon his arrival the cadets passed in review, the bright sun sparkling on polished brasses and blackened puttees.

After the review the Colonel proceeded to inspect each cadet, noting his appearance and his knowledge as expressed by answers to questions put to him. Then he ordered the commander of Co. A to deploy his command and display what they knew about extended order drill. Later he tested Co. B on close order formations and the manual of arms, after which he summoned all the officers to his side and quizzed them on the general features of a large map which he had spread before them.

On his departure the Colonel informed Major Mould that he was very pleased with the fine performance of the College Battalion, and especially commented on the excellence of their theoretical work. Maj. F. L. Beals, in charge of Chicago High Schools R. O. T. C., added that the college performance was the best in years.

The objective of the unit in this inspection was that of winning an honor school rating, but the results are not yet known. This desirable rating is determined by the inspecting officer of the 6th Corps Area, and is awarded only to a limited number of institutions. Last year Crane's R. O. T. C. missed this rating by only six-tenths of a point.

In conclusion, it may be said that the college battalion has accomplished its aims and has served the college well, proving its claim to the watchword of all military organizations—"Always Serving."

Spring Semester

SINCE its organization, early in 1928, the Crane Y. W. C. A. has constantly held before it a three-fold purpose: to stand for a complete comradeship for all people through an understanding of their customs, to bring about a closer companionship among the girls of Crane Junior College, and to live a full and creative life through a growing knowledge of God. The organization participates in the activities of the Young Women's Student Christian Federation, which includes students of all races and nationalities. Any girl who subscribes to its purpose may become a member.

The fall term opened with a Freshman tea to welcome the new students to the Crane fold. Included among the activities of the fall term were Halloween and Thanksgiving parties, pleasureable events staged to celebrate the respective holidays.

A faculty tea, during registration week, was the opening event of the spring semester. A few weeks later, as a climax of the events of the year, the club sponsored a Ceremonial Membership Banquet at the West Side Y. W. C. A. An April Fool's party followed closely by a splash party filled the club activity program. There were also several informal meetings, including a number of talks on current problems, social and political, tending to make the Crane co-ed more familiar with the present day situations. As a fitting and successful close to the season's events, a May Garden Party was presented at Miss Barnes' Lake Forest home.

In all their activities, the members of the organization have striven to instil into the school their spirit of comradeship and their high ideals.

SPANISH CLUB

 DR. DeALARID.....Sponsor

THE Spanish Club organized eleven years ago under the leadership of Dr. DeAlarid has been continually increasing in membership until it can be considered among the largest groups at Crane Junior College. The club was organized with the purpose of furthering the study of the Spanish Language among the students at Crane, and promoting the study of Spanish literature and advancement of culture; both of which are still foremost in the club's activities.

All students interested in Spanish are invited to join this group, and partake in their meetings and festivities. Every year the club buys several books for the Crane Library and since its founding has donated more than four hundred books to the Crane Library. These books are a great help to the students when it becomes necessary to make book reports and do outside reading for their assignments in Spanish. These books are bought by a special committee appointed by the acting president from a portion of the dues which is set aside for this purpose.

Each semester it is arranged that each class taught by Mr. DeAlarid send several representatives to a meeting and the officers elected should represent one from each class. In this way the work of the organization will include all the students in each class and therefore a larger membership is acquired, and the students become better acquainted with the activities of the group.

The club has, during the past semester functioned so efficiently through the diligent work of the officers and the advisor Dr. DeAlarid.

K. I. I. P.

THE Collegian takes this opportunity to express its appreciation to the K. I. I. P. for the co-operation of its members in producing the art work of the 1932 Collegian. Organized for the purpose of extending the scope of the Crane architectural student's knowledge into fields not included in his course at Crane, the K. I. I. P. was chartered by the Student Council in 1931. In their selection of members the founders qualified only those of high scholastic record; this restriction, having become a distinct part of their constitution, has given them the distinction of being the Crane Junior College Architectural Honor Society.

The membership is not restricted to Crane undergraduates but includes also many of the well-known alumni. Because of its varied membership, its activities have taken the form of more advanced studies in clay modeling, and auditions of some of the members of the Crane faculty and other noted men in Architectural fields.

FRATERNITY

"A Fraternity is a body of men banded together with an oath of allegiance, having for its object the mutual advantages to be gained by its members. It is an organization having for its principles in their fullest meanings: Friendship, Brotherly Love, Truth and Honor . . . and to inculcate in its members Courage and Nobility of Mind and Heart."

SIGMA PI ALPHA

(Beta Chapter)

SINCE 1914 when a club known as the "Gero Boys" was organized with the principles of sponsoring school undertakings and promoting a closer feeling of friendship amongst the student body, especially the Jewish students, Sigma Pi Alpha has been in existence at Crane. The "Gero Boys" took the Greek letter name in 1918 and then received a state charter.

At present, Sigma Pi Alpha has expanded to three chapters. The Beta Chapter is composed solely of Crane undergraduates. Alpha is the alumni chapter and Gamma is the DePaul chapter.

That Beta chapter might better serve to raise the level of scholarship at Crane, it has been awarding a silver loving cup every June since 1926 to the male student with the highest scholastic average for the preceding two semesters.

ZETA BETA ALPHA

THE Zeta Beta Alpha Fraternity was founded at Crane, in 1927, by a group of Pre-legal students, and since that time has established an Alpha chapter at the De Paul Law School. The Crane chapter is the Beta chapter.

The members of Zeta Beta Alpha have participated actively, and prominently in all school affairs, both in athletics, and in social and political functions. During the past year the society held dinner-dances at the Congress Hotel and the Terrace Gardens, and in April a Father and Son Banquet was given. This was followed in June by a pledge banquet at which Leo Hoffman, grand master for three semesters, was presented with a silver loving cup as a partial reward for his excellent work as Grand Master.

(Beta Chapter)

THETA Sigma Theta is celebrating its fifth anniversary this year. This organization began in 1927 as a club of eight girls. Later they formed a Greek letter society with the purpose of being officially recognized as a student group interested in fostering the Crane spirit of loyalty, co-operation, friendship, and cultural attainment. Last term Theta Sigma Theta emphasized its spirit of co-operation by taking part in the program of the Men's Club Christmas party. Membership in this society is strictly limited.

LITERARY SECTION

FULL MOON MENDEL BUNNING

Selected by the Collegian staff as the best piece
published in the 1931-2 Pen and Pad issues.

*Well, for God's sake,
If it isn't Bob!
Here, have a chair.
I'm much better . . .
You can see for yourself.
How was your trip?
That's good.
What's that you have in that bag there?
Oranges?
Honestly, Bob, are you a nut . . .
Bringing me oranges!
I have enough already to open a fruit
store.
You say. I'm mighty jovial for a sick man?
What makes you think I'm sick?
I can sit up in bed already, can't I?
Lucky?
Well, I'd guess you'd call it that.
Yes, I know I was smashed up pretty badly.
Bob Taylor, did I hear you say
You thought I knew how to drive a car?
Say, listen, boy,
You know damn well
I can outdrive you
Any old day.
What happened this time?
I—I knew you'd ask me that.
I've told the others I didn't know.
But . . . oh, God! . . .
I've got to tell someone.
No, Bob, I'm all right . . .
I'm all right . . .
Just a little excited.
Will you pour me a glass of water?
That's a good boy . . .
Thanks.
Ha! Ha! Just look at my hand shake will you?
I guess I must be a little weak, huh?
No, Bob, I tell you I'm all right . . .
perfectly.
Pale?
Well, what do you expect me to be . . .
The picture of health?
G'wan! But, listen, Bob,
In all seriousness . . .*

*Does there seem to be Anything the matter with me . . .
Do I seem to be going off my nut?
I guess it's silly to ask . . .
You wouldn't tell me anyway.
Bob, if I told you something,
Would you promise not to tell?
I've got to spill it to someone . . .
I'll go crazy keeping it to myself.
Close that door, will you?
That's right.
Now draw your chair up close.
I feel sort of silly . . .
But you'll believe me,
Won't you, Bob?
You know I wouldn't lie to you.
It started back about eight months ago . . .
Toward the end of April.
You remember
I went to Cleveland that month . . .
Sure . . .
And it was on the way back
That I first found her.
It was a strange meeting . . .
Rather fantastic . . .
And I'll never forget it.
It was nine at night
Along one of those long stretches
Of deserted highway . . .
Just endless acres of flatland,
With a solitary tree here and there
Silhouetted against the moonlight . . .
For the moon was full . . .
It was the first full moon
And there wasn't a cloud in the sky,
So that the yellow moon
Lit up the whole countryside
With a sort of an eerie glow,
Making it all seem rather ghostly.
Remember the detour they had
Early in the year . . .
About an hour's riding
Past the Indiana border . . .
That sharp right-angle turn
With the big rock in one corner?
Yeah, 'Little Gibraltar'
We used to call it.
Well,
I was just about there,
Doing around sixty-five,
I should say,
When I saw her,
Standing there by the rock.
And in the glare of my head-lamps
I could see that she had her arm outstretched.
As if asking for a lift.
No,
I didn't see her at first . . .
It was only when
I was almost upon her.
I thought, 'The damn fool
Is taking a chance
On being run down,'
And my first impulse
Was to pass her up.
You know yourself
What an effort it takes
To stop a car that's speeding.
And then again, it was night,
And warnings had been posted
Of highway hold-ups.*

But when I got a good look at her
 I just had to stop.
 It must have been a mixture
 Of surprise and sympathy
 That made me step on the brakes:
 Surprise
 At seeing a girl
 Standing alone on a highway
 At night
 Dressed
 In one of those fluffy, flimsy evening gowns . . .
 And sympathy
 For such a gorgeous creature in distress . . .
 For I tell you, Bob,
 'Gorgeous' alone describes her,
 In spite of her death-like pallor.
 She was young,
 But her face was chalky white.
 Her lips were pale
 And her eyes were sad and tired.
 She seemed
 So delicate
 And dainty
 And fragile
 That I somehow
 Felt she would break
 If someone
 Should drop her a foot.
 I stopped the car
 With a screeching of brakes
 And opened the door.
 "Do you want a lift, miss?" I called,
 She came to the door of the car—
 Floated, perhaps, is a better word,
 For that's what she seemed to do—
 And asked.
 "Are you bound for Chicago?"
 She asked it so seriously, Bob . . .
 And her voice was soft and lovely . . .
 "Why, yes," I said,
 "Jump in."
 So in she got . . .
 So gracefully . . .
 She hardly seemed
 To touch the running-board
 As she stepped up.
 I leaned over
 And pulled the door to,
 And we
 She squeezed herself
 Into
 Her corner of the seat
 And said not a word.
 I suddenly felt it was cold.
 So I said to her,
 "There's a blanket
 In the back seat, miss,
 That you can use,
 'Cause it's somewhat cold."
 "Thank you," she said.
 "I'm quite all right,"
 And her voice seemed to me
 As if far away.
 "I'm so sorry
 To have bothered you
 As it is."
 "It's no bother miss."
 I said to her,
 "So long as you haven't
 Some pals down the road
 Waiting to stick me up."
 I was trying to joke with her,
 Of course,
 And make her smile.
 But she turned her head

And said to me,
 "No—I'm not that,"
 So seriously
 That I was sorry
 To have said it at all.
 "I'm only joking," I said.
 And she
 Murmured, "Yes,
 I know,"
 Without the trace of a smile.
 We stayed silent then
 For a couple of miles,
 Till she suddenly said,
 "I don't want you to think
 Me unsociable,
 But it's no fun to talk
 When you're tired.
 I suppose you're wondering
 What I could be doing
 Alone on the road at night.
 But I can trust you
 Not to ask me,
 I know."
 Which surprised me,
 Because, you see,
 That's exactly
 What I'd been thinking.
 Then she asked whether
 I could drop her off
 At a certain address on Drexel.
 I told her yes
 And turned my head
 To say something more,
 When I saw that she
 Had her eyes on me.
 In the dim light
 From the dash-board
 Her eyes seemed black,
 And for an instant
 I had the queer feeling
 That there weren't any eyes at all . . .
 Just two empty sockets . . .
 Two hollow sockets
 So deep
 That the bottom couldn't be seen.
 I felt a cold chill down my spine
 And turned back to my wheel
 Without saying a thing.
 Her look
 Had frozen me into silence.
 We rode on for mile after mile
 Without a word
 And once when I glanced at her
 Through the corner of my eye
 I saw that she
 Was much absorbed
 In staring vacantly
 At her fingernails.
 Finally we reached the city limits.
 "It won't be long now," I said.
 And she answered softly, "No."
 And then as we swung into Drexel
 I turned to say something more . . .
 BUT SHE WAS GONE!
 What do I mean . . .
 Gone?
 Just what I say . . .
 She had vanished.
 No,
 She couldn't have jumped out.
 For one thing,
 You know yourself
 That I never drive slow.
 Yes,
 The door was closed
 And I hadn't stopped once
 Since I'd picked her up.
 She'd disappeared into thin air.

I shook all over.
 I tell you, Bob,
 I'd never had such a scare.
 I kept on driving,
 In a sort of a daze.
 I guess I passed up
 One or two stop-lights.
 And I almost ran down an old lady.
 But my head was swimming
 Something awful.
 I thought for a moment
 It might have been a dream.
 But I couldn't very well
 Have got as far as I did,
 Driving in my sleep.
 It had been real, all right.
 And then an argument
 Started inside me:
 Should I stop at the address she had given me;
 Or would they only think I was drunk?
 And while I was trying to make up my mind,
 I noticed
 By the numbers on the houses
 That the place was near.
 I stopped in front
 Of the number she had told me,
 And sat there for ten minutes,
 Still dazed
 And wondering what to do.
 Finally
 I went up the steps
 And rang the bell.
 An old man came to the door.
 "Well sir," he said kindly,
 "What can I do for you?"
 "This may seem a strange request,"
 I said to him,
 "But may I come in and talk to you?"
 "Of course you might,"
 He answered,
 Standing aside to let me pass.
 So in I went,
 And he closed the door behind me.
 "Just throw your wraps
 Over a chair
 And come in here."
 He led the way to the front room
 And we took chairs
 In front of the fireplace.
 I can see him now,
 Sitting there,
 White-haired,
 Kindly-looking,
 Dignified,
 Polite,
 Listening,
 Without saying a word,
 To my incoherent story.
 When I had finished
 He rose and said,
 "Stay here, my boy.
 What you need is a drink."
 He brought me some whiskey
 And poured me some.
 It warmed my blood . . .
 I could feel its warmth
 Creeping all through me . . .
 I hadn't realized
 How cold I had been.
 "Thanks," I said to him.
 "I suppose you think I'm an awful liar,
 But it's all really happened
 Just as I've said."
 And he answered me,
 "I know you're not lying, my boy.
 I hear the same story

'Bout once a month."
 "Good Lord!" I exclaimed.
 "Have you any idea
 Who the girl might be?"
 "There's no doubt in my mind,"
 He answered calmly,
 "That it's Phyllis, my daughter.
 She was killed at the spot
 Where you picked her up
 'Bout a year ago
 In a ghastly collision.
 She seems to appear there
 Every month
 On the first night
 Of the full moon.
 And now I suggest
 That you go home and rest
 And do your best
 To forget all this."
 I went home, Bob,
 But I couldn't rest,
 And I couldn't forget.
 The vision of her wistful face
 And her tired black eyes
 Stayed with me always.
 I used to feel
 That I might have loved her
 If I'd only known her
 Before she died.
 And try as I might
 I couldn't forget
 That ride.
 I thought of her constantly.
 And as the month rolled by,
 Drawing closer to the night
 Of the first full moon again,
 I found something
 Like a terrible magnet
 Drawing me back
 To that rock on the highway.
 I tried to resist . . .
 To think of other things . . .
 But the vision of Phyllis
 In the moonlight next to the rock
 And her outstretched arm
 Seemed to beckon to me.
 The day that the full moon arrived
 There was a terrible pounding
 In my breast.
 When evening came
 I could stand it no longer.
 I jumped in my car
 And drove like wild
 To "Little Gibraltar."
 It was a little before nine
 When I got there,
 But Phyllis wasn't in sight.
 I waited awhile,
 Torn between hope and fright.
 It was the same kind of night
 The other had been.
 The whole desolate landscape
 Looked like the picture of a frozen
 Planet in the moonlight.
 I waited a minute or so
 And then drove down the road a way
 To turn the car.
 I guess I gave
 A sigh of relief,
 But I must have felt
 Some disappointment
 And the sense of having been fooled.
 But as I started back
 I saw her again,
 Standing there
 With her arm outstretched,
 Looking wistful

And forlorn.
 I stopped the car
 And she got in,
 Just as she'd done before.
 And as I closed the door
 I blurted out,
 "Do you remember me?"
 "Yes," she said softly,
 "And it's kind of you
 To come again."
 I looked at her
 And she looked at me,
 And she seemed to be
 The only reality . . .
 I was sure that the talk with her father
 Had been nothing more than a dream.
 I can't quite remember
 What few words we said
 To each other.
 I only know
 We didn't say much.
 I kept an eye on her constantly
 To see if she were still there.
 And I wanted to touch her
 To see if she were real;
 But I didn't dare.
 As we neared Drexel
 My heart pounded so
 I thought she would hear it.
 When I wheeled the car
 Around the corner
 I looked to see
 That no one was coming.
 And when I turned back she was gone.
 I stopped the car and backed up,
 But she wasn't in sight.
 I rode on . . . excited . . .
 And very unhappy . . .
 Besides having the feeling
 That I was going mad.
 As I passed her father's house
 I recognized it,
 But didn't stop.
 I went straight home
 And got in bed
 And tried to sleep.
 And when I finally did,
 It was to dream of her.
 In the days that followed
 I couldn't eat,
 And I couldn't work.
 I grew worse and worse . . .
 "A walking skeleton," you yourself
 Called me.
 You asked me what the matter was,
 And of course I couldn't tell you.
 I was withering away
 From want of her.
 I was being consumed
 By a merciless fire.
 But once a month
 On the first night
 Of the full moon
 I met her.
 And soon
 I found myself living
 For only those meetings.
 It occurred to me one day
 That it was foolish
 To go on the way I was,
 Wasting away,
 When I might join her for good.
 So the next time I took
 My weird ride with her

I told her
 I loved her
 And asked her
 Whether
 She would be mine
 Were I to die.
 She told me yes.
 And deep down in her throat
 I was sure that I heard
 A sob.
 So at last I was happy again.
 My plan was to drive
 The car into the rock
 Where she waited for me .
 And join her there.
 So last month
 On the first night
 That the moon shone full
 I started forth
 To end it all
 And start anew
 With Phyllis.
 I drove past the rock,
 Turned the car in the road,
 And started back full force.
 Had I hit the rock square
 I wouldn't be here
 With you now.
 But as I drew near,
 Phyllis appeared
 With her arm outstretched,
 And I was filled with fear
 Lest I kill her,
 Forgetting for an instant
 That nothing could harm her.
 Instead of hitting the rock square
 I glanced off it,
 Smashing the car.
 A passing autoist
 Picked me up.
 You know the rest.
 May I have another glass
 Of water please?
 As I've said before,
 I wouldn't lie to you, Bob.
 May God strike me dead
 If I've said
 One word that's not true.
 But I can see that you
 Find it hard to believe me.
 In a way I don't blame you.
 But, God, how I've suffered!
 I felt bitter at first
 That I didn't die.
 Am I ever going back again?
 I don't think
 That I could stand it,
 To see her again
 And not have her.
 But remember, Bob,
 If anything
 Should happen to me,
 You, at least,
 Won't condemn me,
 For you'll know
 What was in
 My heart.
 What do I mean?
 Oh, nothing . . .
 Nothing . . .

*I hear America singing, the varied cards I hear,
Those of the mechanics, each one singing his as it should be blithe and strong,
The carpenter singing his as he measures his plank or beam,
The mason singing his as he makes ready for work or leaves off work . . .
The wood-cutter's song, the ploughboy's on his way in the morning, or at noon intermission or at sundown.*
